THE WEATHER.

Toledo O., June 7, 1892.

The weather over the northern half of the country is generally cloudy with local thunder storms. The southern portion of the country is fair and warm. There is a storm advancing eastward from the extreme northwest, but as yet has not caused any general rains; it has caused a rise in temperature over that section of the country.

There is an area of clearing conditions covering the eastern states which has caused a fall in temperature of about 10 degrees over the New England states. Rains have been local, but are reported from all sections, being heaviest over Minnesota, Wisconsin, and Iowa. The Mississippi river is 4.2 feet above the danger line, having fallen slightly during the past 24 hours. The rainfall at this station amounted to 0.47 inch.

Forecast for Toledo and vicinity for 36 hours—generally fair, with occasional light showers, slightly warmer.

The Great Republican Handicap Race Is Now On.

The Convention Called to Order Promptly on Time.

Preliminary Work Done and an Adjournment Taken.

Delegate W. H. Tucker, of Toledo, In a Very Tight Place.

The Morning of the First Day Broke With Heavy Rain and With Both Factions as Much in the Fight as They Were at the Start.

Minneapolis, Minn., June 7.—The great national republican convention and to which the eyes of democrats as well as republicans from one end of the country to the other are turned, is on.

If was a few moments after the hour of noon when James S. Clarkson, of Iowa, chairman of the national committee, appeared upon the platform and rapped loudly on the desk with a gavel, by the way, constructed of Minnesota wood, and made by the boys of the Industrial school of Minneapolis, and called upon the great gathering before him to come to order.

And it was a great gathering indeed. Fancy an auditorium covering a full acre of space built up inside a still larger structure in the form of a square, and with seats rising from the central space for about a half acre backward upon each of the four sides until they reach the wall.

Fancy above these seats a wide gallery sloping upward with seats and tiers, to the right and left and all about, and fancy every seat occupied, one vast sea of heads, and one can get a faint idea of the convention at the time it was called to order.

The acre of space in the center was occupied by the delegates, while back of these in the orchestra circle were the alternates. On the south side of the hall, raised four feet above the floor, was the platform with the chair of the presiding officer fair in the center. Immediately back of this platform were 84 chairs, each occupied by a member of the national committee, and in the rear of these again several hundred invited guests and women relatives of the delegates. In front of the platform was the rostrum extending about six feet into the space reserved for the delegates, and from which the speeches before the convention will be made.

To the right and left were the quarters for the working newspaper men, some five hundred of them. To shut out the glare of the noon-day sun, which otherwise would have fallen immediately upon the delegates the heavy glass roof had been painted a delicate blue, while daylight came through forty square windows in the roof directly over the galleries.

The band, instead of being located in the gallery as in previous conventions, had a comfortable location for itself in the form of a suspended platform reached only from the roof, and in connection with the chairman of the convention by means of a speaking tube. The decorations of the interior were very elaborate, blue, old gold and the national colors predominating.

The big posts, each twice the circumference of a telegraph pole, had been covered with bronze and presented a glittering appearance. At the center of each of the four sides of the hall immense silk flags, each about thirty feet in length, were suspended from the talons of enormous eagles.

Over the chairman's seat hung the stars and stripes, fastened to the large pillars on either side by a large eagle head. Shields bearing the names of the several states decorated the front of the gallery together with the national colors and specimens of the golden grain of the northwest.

Although the official call designated the hour of noon for the assembling of the convention the forty doors were opened soon after 9 o'clock, and an hour later a stream of people began to flow over the big bridge that leads from the business section of the town to the exposition hall. The spectators were ahead of the delegates, and it didn't seem very long before the terraces reserved for those who were fortunate enough to be among the onlookers seemed, looking from a distance, to be well filled.

As the delegates began to arrive and were recognized they were greeted with hearty applause according to their popularity.

Gov. Foraker, Chauncey M. Depew, Warner Miller, Gov. McKinley, Gen. Mahone, John R. Lynch, of Mississippi; old Uncle Dick Oglesby, of Illinois; the venerable ex-Secretary of the Navy R. W. Thompson, of Indiana; Senator Sewell, of New Jersey; Powell Clayton, of Arkansas; M. H. De Young, of San Francisco; the veteran Lucius Fairchild, of Wisconsin; Congressman Warner, of Kansas City; ex-Senator Ingalls, of Kansas, and ex-Speaker Reed, the latter occupying a place with the invited guests in the rear of the chairman, all came in for hearty recognition and welcome.

HAHN SUCCEEDS CONGER

The Sherman Scheme Put to the Front.

Minneapolis, June 7.—The cheif surprise of the day has been the unexpected strength which the Blaine faction demonstrated in the Ohio delegation. It has been generally understood hat of the 46 votes of the Buckeye state, Harrison would get nearly three-fourths. The first test vote calculated to call out the relative strength of the Blaine and Harrison forces in this delegation.

At the time of its selection by the state and district conventions divided into what was commonly called the Sherman and Foraker forces—the fight at that time being between Senator Sherman and ex-Governor Foraker for supremacy in the state of Ohio. When the delegation arrived here and after Mr. Blaine was understood to have entered into the contest, it was generally reported, and, indeed commonly accepted by all that the Sherman force represented the strength of the administration and the Foraker delegates the following of Mr. Blaine.

Therefore, the contest over the selection of the member of the national committee resolved itself into a contest of the Blaine and Harrison forces in the Ohio delegation.

The result was a victory for the Harrison people by a surprisingly close vote—23 to 21. Mr. Hahn was put in nomination by Judge Ambler and Colonel Lemon by ex-Governor Foraker.

When the meeting was called to order, Colonel Conger arose and stated he had served the state as a member of the national committee for eight years, and while he was extremely thankful for the honor conferred upon him, he had no desire to serve further in that capacity, and asked that his name be not presented to the delegation.

Gen. Asa Bushnell was then elected honorary vice-president of the convention, and Amos Denison, of Cleveland, honorary secretary.

W. A. Crum was appointed on the committee on credentials: George K. Nash, of Columbus, on permanent organization; Judge Ambler, on rules and regulations; ex-Governor Foraker, on resolutions, and Hon. William Hahn, a member of the national committee, Gov. McKinley was made chairman of the delegation.

THE SILVER CAUCUS.

A Rousing Time Had by the Western Delegates.

Minneapolis, June 7.—A hot controversy broke out at almost the beginning of the big caucus of western delegates that assembled in the California delegation headquarters.

Fully 150 delegates were present from the Pacific coast and Rocky Mountain states, to which invitations were sent by the Californians. None but delegates were admitted; but the open plate glass window afforded an excellent view of the animated scene within.

Senator Teller of Colorado was selected to act as chairman; but before the proceedings were fairly under way the question was raised as to whether the caucus had been called to discuss the silver plank or to talk about candidates.

Senator Teller held that it would be useless to attempt to enter into the matter of a platform until the caucus reached some decision as to the candidate that would be supported.

If Harrison were the nominee, it mattered not how strong a silver plank might be adopted, the republicans could carry the western states. The senator declared specifically that Harrison under no circumstances could get the electoral vote of Colorado. Much excitement was caused by Mr. Teller's blunt declaration, and he was vigorously replied to by Judge Spence, of California, a staunch Harrison supporter. Spence spoke at great length, gesticulating violently and becoming almost white at times with passion.

De Young, of California, followed Spence in a spirited address, and was reinforced by no less a Blaine lieutenant than Boutelle of Maine. The latter spoke with marked emotion of the western support of Blaine in 1884, and that he had been escorted to his home by California delegates, a proceeding which Boutelle urged would be no less fitting now.

Senator Jones, of Nevada, succeeded Boutelle. He charged Harrison with being dangerous because of his veto propensities, and declared that the president had threatened to veto a free coinage bill.

Judge Spence contradicted Senator Jones point blank and gave tit for tat to the radical pro-silver Blaine element in the caucus. He proclaimed that if a split was brought in the republican party through the action of the convention, the blame would rest on Blaine, who after a lifetime work that they all approved had yielded in his old age to the blandishment of a parcel of selfish political bosses.

The caucus was now in an uproar, and the Blaine men shouting and cheering for their favorite made such a showing of strength that the Harrison men might as well have been in Manitoba. They surrendered and let their opponents have full swing.

The discussion had all started by the offering of a resolution by Judge E. V. Spence, who hails from Lassen county, California, as follows:

"Resolved, That we heartily indorse the efforts now being made to procure an international agreement for the universal free coinage of silver, and that in pursuance of the republican principles of protection under which we have prospered so much during the past, we deem it expedient and just to our own people that our congress should at once provide for the coinage of all the silver product in our own country and that a tariff should be levied upon imported foreign silver."

It was after the reading and seconding of this resolution that the flow of Maine eloquence started by Teller began, and was followed by the succession of assaults on Harrison.

No vote was taken on the Spence resolution, and when Mr. De Young moved that the sense of the caucus be that a committee composed of one member from each delegation represented be appointed for the purpose of embodying the wants of the meeting in the form of a resolution to be presented to the national convention committee on the platform, the motion was carried with a tremendous hurrah. Jack, of California; Bartin, of Nevada; Townsend, of Colorado; Biedberg, of Montana; Salisbury, of Utah; Heyborn, of Idaho, and Bennett of Washington, were named, and the caucus adjourned with Blaine feeling aroused to a high pitch.

DOUBLE DEALING.

Secretary Foster Says Secretary Blaine is Crooked.

Washington, June 7.—President Harrison's friends do not seem at all disturbed by the action of Mr. Blaine. They continue to express the utmost confidence that he will be renominated in spite of the great noise that is made for Blaine. Secretary Foster said:

"I have received to-day several telegrams from Minneapolis, and all of them indicate that the president is as strong as ever. While I am an admirer of Mr. Blaine, I cannot but think that he has shown some duplicity in this matter. If he had determined months ago to be a candidate, had not written that letter to Clarkson, and had then resigned from the cabinet, it would have been all right, but I cannot get over the idea that he has been guilty of double dealing.

"It seems to me that the majority of the delegates to the convention will take this view of the case, and that they will not be carried off their feet by the great hurrah for Blaine. Harrison is the logical candidate of the party. There is no blot upon his administration.

"I believe he will be stronger before the people than any other man that can be named. The opposition to him is on purely personal grounds and I earnestly hope and believe he will be the choice of the convention on the first ballot."

There is a great deal of talk among republicans about a third man. Many doubt the wisdom of nominating either Harrison or Blaine under the circumstances. The talk here is for McKinley or Allison. The belief is expressed that either of them would close the breach and harmonize all factions. Sherman is regarded as a possibility, but the others named seem to have the call among republicans here. The wires between Washington and Minneapolis are kept hot with dispatches to and fro between the prominent party managers.

PLATT AND NEW.

There Opintons are as Widely Apart as the Men

New York, June 7.—Hon. T. C. Platt last night telegraphed the following to the Press:

"I am absolutely certain the result will be in favor of Blaine. We have assurances from more than 550 delegates that they will vote for Mr. Blaine on the first ballot. We are certain there are other men who will vote for him when they realize the situation, as they will before the balloting begins, because their hearts are for Blaine, although they are instructed for Harrison."

Hon. John C. New telegraphed the World substantially as follows: "You wish to know the exact situation. Well, in a nutshell, the Harrison strength has not been injured by the heavy attacks, and gains of a substantial nature are to be reported. The resignation of Mr. Blaine came too late, and his candidacy, if it really exists, which I do not admit, will not satisfy those who took him at his word last winter.

"There have been a number of accessions to our list of delegates. Some of them were not anticipated. We make a better showing than we looked for. The raids made on the southern delegations have not met with the success that our opponents expected. A few changes have been effected. I do not say how—but nothing like what they tried to get.

"There are some pretty smart politicians against us but we have a magnificent organization, and we are now experimenting its benefits. I feel more than ever assured that the first ballot will place President Harrison again before the country as the republican candidate."

STRAY OBSERVATIONS.

Minneapolis, June 7.—It is estimated by those who are making a careful poll that nine-tenths of the delegates who are to occupy seats in the convention are in the city. This and the meetings of the various state delegations gave opportunity for ascertaining the relative strength of Blaine and Harrison in each of the delegations.

In a general way it shows that Blaine has gained in the east and the extreme west, but Harrison has more than held his own in the most of the lake states and the region between the Rockies and the Alleghenies.

The south continues to be a subject of the wildest speculation. How most of these states will ultimately vote no one knows, and of the means that are being exerted by both factions to gain the allegiance of the delegates much is said that is unworthy of the gravity of the situation.

The question now which is the subject of most speculation is how many candidates are there in the field. The leaders of both the Blaine and Harrison forces have been proceeding upon the presumption that Michigan will not present the name of Alger, and that the field would be left clear to the two great competitors.

They felt that as a very close relation existed between the Blaine leaders and the managers of Gen. Alger, the latter would retire should the indications be that Blaine is to need every doubtful vote in order to assure his nomination.

The action of the Michigan delegation in reasserting their loyalty to the Wolverine candidate seems, however, to indicate that this presumption is unwarranted.

Indeed, the Alger managers are claiming 60 votes for their candidate, maintaining that in addition to the support of Michigan he will receive many votes from the west and south.

In the event of Alger withdrawing, the Blaine people maintain that their candidate will receive every vote of the Michigan delegation except two, and the Harrison managers concede that the great majority of the delegation of the Wolverine state would probably go to Blaine.

In another way the results of the day tended to excite the forebodings of the conservative party leaders who are unidentified with either party. It is observed that the managers of the rival factions are growing colder and colder towards each other, and that many of these prominent leaders do not speak to their fellow republicans as they meet in the corridors. The feeling is growing every hour that this is to be a supreme battle of the giants, and that there are the dark horses-no-compromise candidates.

Notwithstanding the loyalty of the Michigan delegation to Alger, it is believed that the result will be decided upon the first ballot. Despite these conclusions of the great majority, however, there are hundreds of republicans in this city to-day, scores of whom are delegates, who are whispering that the success of the party next November lies in dropping both Blaine and Harrison, and taking up a third man who has not been actively identified with either faction.

As usual, McKinley is the name most frequently mentioned, but the governor himself deprecates any suggestion of himself as a compromise candidate, and reiterates his allegiance to President Harrison.

Senator Cullom, of Illinois, does the same, and it seems that the demand for a compromise candidate, if it comes at all, must be from one of the delegates outside of the states, which are likely to furnish the candidate.

CALLED TO ORDER.

Chairman Clarkson Opens a Most Interesting Meeting.

Minneapolis, June 7.—Shortly after 12 o'clock National Chairman Clarkson called the convention to order.

Rev. Dr. William Brush, chancellor of Dakota university, Mitchell, S. D., was introduced and led in prayer.

The name of J. Sloat Fasset was then presented as temporary chairman, and he was chosen by acclamation. He spoke as follows:

Mr. Chairman and Fellow Republicans: For the distinguished honor which you have conferred upon me I am very grateful. I appreciate the duties of presiding officer with extreme diffidence and am sustained only by a reliance upon your generosity and co-operation.

It is eminently fitting that a republican convention should be held in a temple erected for the display of products of protection to American industries and in this beautiful city of Minneapolis, the joy and the pride of giant west.

This city which just about equals in age the republican party, with its prosperous mills and factories and workshops, and its generous and happy homes, abounds in object lessons, teaching clearer than in any words the sound wisdom of republican doctrine.

We are met to exercise one of the highest privileges of our citizenship.

As trustees of seven million voting republicans gathering from every state and territory, it becomes our duty to formulate for the inspection of the people the belief and purposes of our party relative to all the living questions of national importance and to choose that man for leader under whose guidance we feel we shall be most sure of establsihing the belief in the form of laws.

We are here not a warring faction, struggling to win supremacy under favorite leaders, but as co-members of one great party seeking to select from the shining roll of our honored great men that type of statesmen which shall be regarded as the most complete embodiment of the cardinal doctrines of our party.

There is not a republican in this convention whose heart does not burn with ardor for triumph in the impending campaign. We are all eager for success; we are here to make the necessary preliminary arrangements and all propose to make them in the right way and in the right spirit.

If there is ever a time for republicans to differ it is precisely on such conventions as this, when they are met together for the express purpose of reaching ultimate unity through the contest of present differences.

In the wide reaching and delicate business of agreeing upon the standard bearers for a great party, there is abundant opportunity for honest men to hold and express honest differences of opinion, and the more earnest the men and the more honest the opinions, the more determined will be the contests and collisions, and the more complete the final unanimity.

The air is always sweeter. It is our right now to oppose each other; it will be our duty to unite to-morrow. Our differences should end at the convention doors, and will end there.

When this convention shall have concluded its labors we shall have but one choice and that the nominees of this convention; but one purpose, the election. The nomination does not end the campaign; it begins it.

The campaign which is to be made will not be the campaign of the candidates, by the candidates and for the candidates, but of all the party, by all the party and for all the party in the interests of the whole people.

With malice towards none, but with a federation and respect toward all, each of us, according to his light, as God gives him to see the light, should subordinate all merely local and personal considerations to an earnest endeavor to secure the best interests of the republican party, throughout the entire sisterhood of states.

None of our trusted leaders are weak men; all of them are strong. Some may be stronger than others. If, as each delegate views the field, there is some man whose figure seems to him larger, whose stature high, whose fame more commanding, whose name more inspiring than that of any other man, then the pathway of each delegate should be broad and easy.

The eyes of all republicans at home and the eyes of our adversaries everywhere are intently fixed upon this convention. A nation is watching us, our enemies to criticise, our friends to ratify. The responsibility is enormous, but you will meet it wisely.

The republican party never yet made a mistake in its choice of its candidates; it will not now. All over this broad land the bonfires are set to be lighted, the flags are ready to be unfurled and the republicans at home are waiting to shout in approval of your choice.

The history of our party since 1856 is the history of our country. There is not a single page but shines brighter for some word of some great republican.

Count, moreover, our chosen whom we are teaching our children to love, emulate and reverence, and you shall name republicans. Lincoln, Seward, Grant, Sherman, Garfield, Logan, Harrison and Blaine—these are a few of our jewels and we may proudly turn to our democratic friends with the defiance "match them."

These men were great through their belief and advocacy of the enobling and inspiring doctrines of the republican faith.

Name, moreover, the great masterpieces of constructive and progressive legislation, enacted since the civil war and there, one by one, their authors and finishers will be found republicans.

I have not the time to catalogue the long list of great works undertaken and performed. You are all familiar with the story of the irrepressible conflict undertaken and concluded; slavery abolished and public credit established; the constitution and the union restored and reconstructed; the old flag washed clean of every stain, and new stars added to its glory; the wide west thrown open to easy access and settlement, the policy of protection to American labor and American industries established, developed and vindicated; the markets of the world opened by the persuasive logic of reciprocity to the products of American workshops and the American farm, until to-day the nations of the earth are paying tribute to the sagacity of our legislation and diplomacy in millions upon millions of increased purchases, and Lord Salisbury has been driven to the significant confession that even England free trade has proven disappointing.

Rivers and harbors have been opened to commerce; the white hulls of our navy are plowing the waters of every sea; peace has been maintained at home and respect secured abroad; and so the list might be extended and expanded, while your patience might endure to listen and our political adversaries, though perpetually opposing every measure of our new republican policy, are compelled to give testimony to the wisdom of our course, and that we have been right and that they have been wrong.

They have about exhausted in the Fifty-first congress one year of congressional life in vain attacks upon three items in a tariff bill made up of 300 items.

At this rate of progress they would have to be trusted for 800 years in power before we could see a tariff reform as agreed upon by our conflicting democratic friends. But we cannot hope to win merely upon the recital of the achievements of our party, brilliant as they have been, any more than our adversaries can hope to succeed us with glittering promises.

The past is useful to us in so far as it demonstrates the ability of our party to redeem its pledges and its ability to govern in a broad and enlightened way a free and progressive people.

Our pledges have been kept, all save one, and I greatly mistake the temper of the republican party if it will be contented until that pledge is made good.

Our honor is pledged to continue the contest for a free and honest ballot until this question is settled in the right.

That a free people should cast a free vote and have it honestly recorded and returned, is the dream and determination of the republican party and the despair and nightmare of the democracy.

It is the pride of th erepublican party that it never has committed an assault upon the freedom of the ballot.

The entire vocabulary of political crimes has grown out of attempts to describe assaules of democracy upon the freedom of the ballot, and fair play in the exercise of the franchise, as the individual words have been made intelligible by democratic practices.

No question has ever been permanently settled, and never will be finally determined, until it is settled in the right and until every citizen, white or black, east or west, north or south, can approach the ballot box with absolute security and have his vote counted with absolute honesty, none of us can rest assured that our liberties are safe.

Unless the votes of all men are safe, it is not the negro alone who is disfranchised, it is every American.

The contest before us assumes all its difficulties from the fact that we enter the presidntial rac, handicapped by the certainty that in an electoral college of 444 members, 156 votes are now already absolutely secured, in advance, to the democratic nominees, and these 156 votes come from the south, which is kept permanently solid through a perpetual breach of the guarantees of the constitution of the United States.

Sometimes we are told that the mission of the republican party is ended; we have met our destiny and fulfilled it. But the destiny of a progressive party is never fulfilled in an advancing and expanding national life.

So long as there remains a wrong to be redressed, so long as there remains a right to be enforced, so long as all the privileges of citizenship are not freely enjoyed under the guarantee that the constitution gives to all citizens of this union, just so long will there be a mission for the republican party; so long will there be a great work before us and each republican may exclaim:

"I live to greet that season, yy gifted men foretold; when men shall live by reason, and not alone by God. When man to man united, and every wrong thing righted, this world shall be lighted, as Eden of old. I live for every cause that lacks assistance, for every wrong that needs resistance, for the future in the distance, and the good that I can do."

What is the further pleasure of the convention?

The convention adjourned to to-morrow.

THE TOLEDO BOYS.

They are Getting to the Front in Good Shape.

Minneapolis, June 7.—(Special)—At a late hour on Monday the republican situation in Minneapolis had the appearance of the boys who wanted to fight but one was afraid and the other dare not.

Each side in the hotels and in many headquarters accused the other of wanting to enter the favorite sons of all the states to hold the convention level for a time, though each of the factions disclaimed such an idea.

If such a disposition were to prevail Ohio would be in a ludicrous predicament, as while McKinley is the prime favorite among the dark horses Foraker has the bee buzzing in his bonnet so loudly that one can hear it above the din of ten drum corps.

And there is Uncle John Sherman, who has friends by the score. The ubiquitous Ohio man is in a peck of trouble.

Delegate Tucker, of Toledo, affirms to be sorely pressed in mind as to what he ought to do. He says he is morally bound to obey instructions and vote for Harrison, but since the turn in Blaine affairs he believes his constituents are really for the reciprocity man, and would so declare if they were to hold another district convention.

Collector Waldorf says Tucker will vote for Harrison. Representative Griffin and ex-Senator T. P. Brown say, with equal positiveness, that Tucker must and will vote for Blaine.

As to the Ohio vote, Waldorf claims it will stand 28 for Harrison and 16 for Blaine.

Griffin says 26 to 20 the other way.

While Foraker says Blaine is bound to have 31 out of the 46.

The biggest man in Minneapolis, judging from newspaper interviews, is George Cox, the Cincinnati saloonkeeper, who here, as in Ohio, is Foraker's man Friday.

He is just a trifle more weighty than McKinley.

Cox says he is willing that Blaine shall be nominated, but if a dark horse is to be the favorite it must be Foraker or there will be a row.

When he makes this speech the crowd from Cincinnati cheers in approval and the brass bands take up the tune and bawl it along the street, while Foraker's breast heaves a gratified response.

A national convention is the greatest place in the world to make a man feel greater at one outburst of applause.

On the democratic side this was never more painfully illustrated than in Chicago in 1884. After the combinations were formed and Grover Cleveland was sure to be the candidate, the flourish of the bandanna made hundreds of Ohio men get ready immediately for the inauguration of Thurman, and even the Old Roman, as he sat in his parlor in the Palmer, listened to the plaudits of his friends, caught the spirit of the occasion and with pardonable pride, thought his good name, honorable record and famous bandana would carry him to Washington.

But it did not, and so likewise will a half dozen puffed and anticipated booms collapse in Minneapolis before the week closes.

One trouble with Foraker is that he takes a pocketful of personal grievances to the conventions and imagines the whole country is interested in his own sorrows.

Monday afternoon he was brought to the rotunda of the West hotel to talk to the Blaine club of Cincinnati.

He accused the Lincoln club of bolting his last nomination for governor and said his faction never scratched.

While he was getting out of this rat-trap a lot of Foraker shouters were in the Ohio headquarters defiantly threatening to bolt if Harrison shall be the nominee.

Verily the Ohio republican should bridle his tongue before starting for a national convention.

As at home, so in Minneapolis, Lieutenant General Squire, of Toledo, is a mighty big boss.

Carson Lake, on the New York Press, once upon a time a Toledo newspaper man, is here as a leader of the Blaine contingent from New York.

He says Elliott Shepherd, of the godly Mail and Express, represents a district in which he does not reside, because he could not be elected in his own district, and because he paid $10,000 into the campaign fund if the committee would permit him to be a delegate.

Mr. Lake says Tom Platt and Sloat Fassett have absolute control of the delegation and intend, before Wednesday, to have a resolution adopted by the delegates protesting against Chauncey Depew from making a speech for Harrison in the Empire state.

Carson is a great romancer and it will be good policy to take much that he says with an alopathic grain of allowance.

Two of the strongest anti-Blaine men from northwestern Ohio are Kid Haymaker and Walt Hilton of Defiance.

They have influence with the Ohio republicans and are not slow in expressing their sentiments at the Ohio headquarters.

It is interesting to the newspaper men to observe how the position of the private secretary has closed the mouth of Jimmy Boyle. Usually bubbling over with knowledge, opinion, and argument, he is now as reserved as a deacon and understands his place to a dot, but the Bee caught him in the act of opening and closing himself like a clam Monday afternoon with this interesting result.

As Jimmy Boyle, he thought the convention had a decided McKinley appearance and his eyes sparkled and his face broadened into an old-time look as he said so, but instantly recalling himself to himself he said he had no opinions to offer on the political situation at the convention, and, as Governor McKinley's private secretary, he spoke not another word.

Brand Whitlock is here representing the Chicago Herald and Witt Cochran is doing bright work for the St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Mr. Whitlock is doing political work this year, and has been all over Illinois. He says Altgeld will surely be elected governor, though the electoral vote of Illinois will go to the republican candidate for president.

THE UNCERTAIN NEGRO.

He is the Political Thorn in Harrison's Side—Inside Workings.

Minneapolis, June 7.—(Special)—If Harrison is defeated in this convention, and at times it has that appearance, it will be because of the utter unreliability of many delegates from the south, who came to Minneapolis pledged to his support.

The ever-present and always-persistent colored delegate is the thorn in Harrison's side that will let out some presidential blood before next holiday.

The southern negroes came with heads up, keeping step to the Harrison brass bands and most gorgeously decorated with Hoosier badges.

The more wily leaders among them have been to republican conventions before, and fully understand that whenever the situation demands their votes they can ride home in a palace car.

This knowledge may be communicated to others by telegraph, but more likely the word passes all around and Br'er Coon lays low for a time.

He did Monday forenoon and until late in the afternoon, when it was noticeable in the hotel lobbies that the Alger colors had displaced the Harrison badges.

Perhaps these purchaseable delegates expect to be brought back to the Harrison column by agencies which they fully understand, but there isn't anybody in the president's crowd doing that kind of business to any great extent, and so the anti-Harrison element expects to land enough fishes for a very comfortable meal of politics.

The plan now is for Alger to go into the fight, not to win, but to hold enough votes to prevent a nomination until the combinations are all and well made, then to deliver his support to anybody who can defeat Harrison.

Even Uncle Dick Oglesby, of Illinois, is in the combination, and although professing great respect for state instructions he will break away very early if he has the opportunity, and when he does so he expects to take the majority of his delegation with him.

But Alger cannot be nominated.

At this time it is almost sure to say that if a new candidate shall be selected that man will be Gov. McKinley.

His name is spoken everywhere, and the Harrison men, though relying upon him to help pull them through, evidently fear him more than they do Blaine.

The hurrah is still with Blaine, but the votes do not correspond with the noise.

The relative strength of the Ohio delegation was partly shown in the vote for national committeeman.

Charley Kurtz, who represented the Foraker crowd, was too unpopular to risk a square vote, so the name of Col. W. C. Lemert, of Bucyrus, was substituted.

The colonel is personally popular, and out of compliment to him several Harrison men voted for him.

The vote stood 23 to 21 in favor of Hahn, or Mansfield, with two Hahn men absent.

A poll of the Ohio delegation after midnight gave Harrison 25 and Blaine 21, although 11, including Foraker, will vote for McKinley at the first favorable opportunity.

If Gov. McKinley is made permanent chairman of the convention, as he probably will be, a break and a stampede may occur very shortly after his appearance as such presiding officer.

While this general favorable opinion of McKinley's possible nomination is expressed there is a large republican element in attendance at the convention that deprecates such a movement.

They fear the prince of protection is too much of a high taxer to suit the conservative business element.

Among those who fully express this view is Editor Harrsen, of the St. Louis Westliche Post, the most influential German-American paper in the west.

He is strong in this opinion and many coincide with him in his outspoken expressions.

A DOWNPOUR OF RAIN

Took the Starch Out of the Plumes—Blaine's Police for Delay.

Minneapolis, June 7.—The friends and supporters of President Harrison's renomination were up with the lark this morning.

As early as 6 o'clock many of them were to be found at various headquarters and the lobbies of the hotels, comparing notes and laying plans and schemes so that every moment of valuable time might be utilized preparatory to the opening of the convention.

The adherents of Mr. Blaine were not as numerous in the early hours. When they looked out of the windows they saw the sky was a mass of lowering clouds and that the rain was coming down in a steady pour that gave promise of lasting throughout the day.

It was a bad outlook for parades and plumes and brass bands and all the other accessories that have been exclusively appropriated by the henchmen of the Maine man, and so they slept late and left their opponents in temporary possession of the field.

For some reason or other the friends of the administration were feeling in a very good mood in the early hours. Nothing short of a miracle, they declared, could defeat the president.

Despite all the brag and bluster of their opponents, they said, if dependence could be placed upon the plighted words of the delegates upon whom they depended, Mr. Harrison would have enough votes to nominate him on the first ballot.

"Our reports up to an early hour," said Michener, of Indiana, "all made with exceeding care, show that we have 511 votes. In this figuring we give the opposition the benefit of all doubts of all contests."

All the indications point to the probability that the Blaine element will fight from the start. They claim they will have the committee on credentials by sufficient working majority to enable them to seat anti-Harrison contestants and if, as is claimed, the policy of the element is for delay, it can drag out its task for an indefinite period in the hope that in the interim some unexpected developments may arise that will be unfavorable to the opposition and of proportionate advantage to themselves.

One of their eleventh hour arguments takes the form that the delegats from those states which instructed for Harrison in the full convention, either direct or implied, thinking Blaine's letter to Chairman Clarkson was final, are not in honor, under existing conditions, bound to adhere to those instructions, and it is said that many messages went over the wires last night to prominent republicans in various states favorable to Blaine, asking them either to impress this view of the matter upon the delegates by wire without delay, or to convene in mass meeting and secure the adoption of resolutions to that end.

But the other side has already seen to it that it will be promptly advised of every such move, and the Harrison people say that it will be effectually circumvented.

ARE FIGURING IT OUT.

A Conservative Estimate Gives Harrison the Nomination.

Minneapolis, June 7.—Each faction keeps its mathematician and is prepared at all times to convince the doubting delegates of the certainty of the success of each candidate.

The highest estimate for Harrison is 541 votes out of a total of 902. A conservative estimate gives Harrison the nomination by the following vote:

States.	Harrison.	Blaine.

Total	459	415

Michigan, for Alger 28. Total votes 902.

These are the figures exhibited as conservative, but there is an uncertainty about some of the states. Thus the Harrison managers claim 29 in Ohio, and allow only 17 to Blaine. The vote of Illinois is as heretofore given, 32 to 16. Missouri stands Harrison 18, Blaine 16, which is two more than set down in the Blaine table above.

DEDICATED BY DEPEW.

Grand Concert Held at the Convention Hall.

Minneapolis, June 7.—The republican convention hall of '92 was opened to the general public last night with an event long and pleasingly anticipated in local and musical circles—a grand concert by a chorus of 1,000 voices supported by the Second Regiment band, of Chicago.

A vast audience numbering over 12,000 people, and filling every seat for distances as far as the eye could reach, surveyed the inspiring scene, which bids fair to become a memorable political battleground.

At 8 o'clock, upon the conclusion of the overture of the opera of "Rienzi," the audience was well seated and received the opening number with every evidence of delight. Various choruses and solos preceded the speech of Hon. Chauncey M. Depew, whose coming was hailed with such an uproar as only many thousand persons can make. Mr. Depew said:

"The democratic party neither through the mouths of its orators nor the utterances of its conventions, nor the editorials of its newspapers ever refers to a democratic statesman, since Gen. Jackson, with one exception. They do speak of ex-president Cleveland; sometimes from Albany and then again from Syracuse. Sometimes in the New York World and then again in the New York Sun. But it is difficult to put a statesman in the category of Jefferson or of Jackson, when part of his party describe him as a mountain of light and the other part as a "mountain of beef."

The republican party on the other hand hangs up on the walls of its conventions the portraits of its presidents, and knows as the country knows, that their lives and achievements are the best history of the country.

At the head of the list stands the "Savior" of the republic and the emancipator of slaves—Abraham Lincoln. Then comes the great soldier, Ulysses S. Grant. Then comes the educator, soldier, statesman and orator, James A. Garfield. Then that admiral officer and model gentleman, Chester A. Arthur. We honor and express our best wishes for long life and happiness for Rutherford B. Hayes, and whatever may be the outcome of this convention, it will place upon record its pride in the wonderfully useful and patriotic administration of Benjamin Harrison.

Our democratic friends seem to be remarkably deficient in presidential timber. It is Cleveland or Hill and nothing beyond. Cleveland and reform, or Hill without reform.

But the republicans are embarrassed with riches. Ohio, as the mother of presidents and mistress of offices, has upon this platform admirable qualifications for the chief magistracy in Gov. McKinley. She has a statesman whose creative mind has formulated the best legislation of the country and whose name will live forever as one of the greatest of American statesmen—John Sherman.

Iowa has the experienced and able Allison; Vermont has Edmunds; Michigan, Alger; Wisconsin, Rusk; Illinois, Cullom and Lincoln.

There are two names which at present belong to no state, but to the country. One, that singularly gifted statesman who has contributed so much to the improvements of our industrial possibilities and the glory of American diplomacy—James G. Blaine. The other, that level-headed, wise and eloquent soldier, senator and president, and upon the platform of the people and in the chair of the magistrate has maintained the best traditions of the presidential office—Benjamin Harrison.

The republican party is united in its policy on every part of the union except where, here and there the bugle may give a shriller note, because there is more silver on the instrument.

The democratic party is hopelessly divided upon its industrial policy and on the crucial question of sound finance and honest currency.

Mr. Depew's allusions to various possible presidential candidates were received with various degrees of applause. When he spoke of John Sherman there were rounds of cheers. Michigan's Alger was greeted with applause, as were also Allison, Edmunds, Rusk and Lincoln. When he had reached the point where better known names were to come a voice in the gallery shouted "Hurrah for Blaine!" and the audience broke out into a wild burst of cheering, waving of handkerchiefs and swinging of umbrellas. Mr. Depew inquired, with a grimace: "I wonder who is running this speech any how?" and the audience received this admonition with a hurricane of laughter and cheers. Mr. Depew's mention of President Harrison's name elicited from the great audience a demonstration of cheers, umbrellas and handkerchiefs, which, if anything, surpassed that which was given to Mr. Blaine.

The entertainment closed about 10 o'clock by the singing by the vast audience of the national hymn, "America."

CONVENTION OFFICERS.

Fassett Scored a Victory in the National Committee.

SOUTHERN DELEGATES.

They are of Much Importance in This Convention.

Minneapolis, June 7.—The members of the southern delegations find themselves of considerable importance and appear to appreciate the fact.

The Harrison men are making strong efforts to hold them in line, while the anti-Harrison forces are bringing all the means at their command to break into the south and apparently with some effect. Each side has outworkers among the southern delegations.

Fred Douglass, notwithstanding his age, is actively at work in the Harrison cause, addressing the colored men and stiffening the lines where they are inclined to waver.

At the Georgia headquarters he addressed the whole delegation while it was engaged in perfecting its organization. The Georgia delegation it has been asserted, was solid for Harrison, but a suspicion developed that some of them were unfavorable and Mr. Douglas urged them to stand firm and true. He announced that he was for Harrison as against Blaine and denounced the latter on account of his opposition to the force bill of 1873. He urged his hearers not to be misled by the hurrah for Blaine.

Brass bands made noise, he said, but they did not make votes. An effort was then made to have the delegation polled and pledged to support Harrison as long as Indiana kept him in the field.

The object was to smoke out some members who were said to be weak-kneed, and it was accomplished, for two delegates at once objected on the ground that it was superfluous, they being all for the president.

Speaking of this, one delegate quoted Sam Jones to the effect that when you hit a dog he yelps. The pole was not insisted upon. There is an opposition to Chairman Buck, but he declares that he will hold the delegation solid.

General Longstreet is at work for Blaine and has written some members of the Georgia delegation, urging them to vote for him. Warner Miller, of New York, is also quietly doing some missionary work for Mr. Blaine among the colored delegates, urging party supremacy and that the Negroes refrain from standing solidly for one man and committing the party against the wishes of the majority of republicans from states in the north, which are necessary to success. Ex-Senator Bruce, Auditor Lynch and other colored men are working for Harrison.

An effort was made to win over Mr. Langston to the president's support, but he told the committee in an outspoken, vigorous manner that he was on the other side. He claims that Virginia will vote for Blaine, with the exception of four or six delegates. Others give the president at least eight votes from Virginia.

THE NEGRO.

Republican Party is Just Now Loving Him a Little.

Minneapolis, June 7.—The meeting which was started at Chicago, having for its object the protection of negroes in the south from violence and lawlessness, and in their right to vote, has come in Minneapolis to a point where it seems to figure in the political fight over the nomination for president.

The movement now has the support of John M. Langston, of Virginia, while ex-Senators Bruce and Lynch, who represent the other wing of the negro element, are opposed to the scheme. Langston, in an interview on the subject to-day, said that the negroes proposed to push the matter. He said: "The feeling of the colored people in one word is this, that any legislation with respect to the protection of the white and colored voters of the south should be secured through the agency of the republican party. If there is no need for legislation, it is the feeling of the colored people and their friends that the laws heretofore enacted shall be promptly and effectually enforced.

"Those laws, calculated to enforce the doctrines and principles of the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments, have been entirely ignored and left neglected and unenforced by the present administration of the general government. It is generally felt by the colored people that Attorney General Miller is a man wanting in legal knowledge and disposition to enforce the laws upon the basis of reconstruction in the south; that he will in fact do nothing as attorney general to this end.

"The colored men feel that Attorney General Miller again in the cabinet of the president, no change could be expected in the administration of the department of justice, and we would be left in the same condition that we are to-day, with murder, lynching and other deeds going unpunished. We desire a change, and a change which may benefit the southern section of our country through the influence of laws wisely maintained and enforced. We mean to organize and get from the national convention a high, brave, patriotic utterance on the subject of the protection of the negroes in the south."

Auditor Lynch, of the treasury, said he had not heard of any organized movement, and announced himself as opposed to it. He said the colored men expected of the republican party and would secure of it a recognition of their rights. What they wanted and would ask was that the party should put in its platform a plank guaranteeing to the colored man the right to vote and to be free from intimidation. They wanted a law passed for the federal control of elections wherever a right was denied to them, but he again remarked that he would not take part in such a movement as the present seemed to be.

THE WOMEN ARE THERE.

J. Ellen Foster on the Scene of Action.

Minneapolis, June 7.—Mrs. J. Ellen Foster is here and "holds a full hand." She said: "The women's republican clubs that are being formed throughout the country will work for and support the republican principles and the election of the republican candidates because we believe the interests of our homes and of the whole country are safer when the republican party is in power.

"I am here as an interested spectator of the convention and to confer with republicans from different parts of the country. The women's work has the full approval of the national committee, and will be wider and more aggressive than in the campaign of '88. We have gained experience and confidence ourselves and have demonstrated that American women are the peers of men in ability to comprehend the great questions of politico economics. The last decade has greatly widened women's range of vision and developed her powers of associated effort.

"This energy has been mainly expended in philanthronic and reform movements, but these women have come to understand the influence of reforms on governments and the relation of government to the best interest of the home. This is why the republican women are so readily aroused to active interest in political affairs."

"Are you here as a representative of the Non-Partisan Woman's Christian Temperance union?"

"I am not; the constitution of our society forbids any such representations. As women we are free to engage in any political party work to which our convictions lead us, but in such work we represent only ourselves."

ENJOYED THEIR SLEEP.

The Streets were Deserted After Midnight.

Minneapolis, June 7.—One subject of comment last night was the extraordinary quiet that prevailed after midnight. Before one o'clock the crowd in the West corridor had thinned out and the colossal picture of Harrison that hangs over the desk looked down on less than 100 politicians. At 2 o'clock the streets were so quiet that a stranger would hardly have realized, but for the decorations, that there was a gathering of tens of thousands of politicians resting on their arms in Minneapolis on the eve of the great quadrennial republican battle. Probably the dismal weather had something to do with the absence of street enthusiasm. All of yesterday the rain fell intermittently. The air last night was heavily charged with moisture and the streets were sloppy and unpleasant. This morning a cold drizzle was falling and the indications promised an unpleasant day. Within an hour the air had cleared and there was some hope of fair weather. The arrivals were not many. A few belated delegates came in on early trains, but almost a complete roster of the convention could have been made from the hotel registers last night. Most of the delegates were astir early.

Two considerations brought them out of bed—the necessity for putting some finishing touches on the preliminary canvassing which had been done last night, and the prospect of being shut out of the hotel dining room if they did not bestir themselves. They settled the problem of sleep vs. breakfast in favor of breakfast and before 9 o'clock the dining room of the West hotel was so crowded that the doors were closed temporarily.

MORE BLANISH.

The Fassett Election Has Given His Stock a Boom

Minneapolis, June 7.—(Special)—Gov. McKinley was the first big man to enter the convention hall in view of the people, and his reception was cordial, which he duly acknowledged with Napoleonic effect.

Tom Reed slipped in unobserved from the rear and hid behind a post.

At noon to-day W. C. McBride, who is usually correct in predictions, said he knew from inside information that Blaine would be nominated.

The atmosphere is more Blaineish to-day than on Monday, though both sides claim it with confidence.

DEPEW AND M'KINLEY.

Both are Confident that Harrison Will be Nominated.

Minneapolis, June 7.—Chauncey M. Depew was one of the early risers this morning. He was out before 8 o'clock. He said to a reporter of the United Press this morning that he was in receipt of dispatches from every county in the state of New York approving his course in supporting the president; that a reaction had set in in favor of Harrison since the resignation of Secretary Blaine, and that the former would be stronger before the people than he was in 1888.

Immediately afterwards the reporter met Gov. McKinley, who rooms on the same floor.

Gov. McKinley said that he had received since his arrival in Minneapolis yesterday nearly fifty telegrams from prominent men in all parts of the country urging the renomination of President Harrison.

IS IT FADING AWAY?

Blaine's Name No Longer a Magnetic Power.

Minneapolis, June 7.—Shortly before 10 o'clock there was an impromptu review in front of the West house. The Eau Claire (Wis.) club began it. Wearing linen dusters with pearl buttons and carrying canes with little flags at the end, which unfolded as they drilled, they marched past, headed by their band and as quickly reinforced by the Iowa republican club in their white linen uniforms and their colored umbrellas. Other clubs in grey and brown and blue and scarlet uniforms followed each preceded by a band and altogether they made a scene decidedly lively.

Nevertheless in spite of the hurly-burly Minneapolis is beginning to express itself very pointed. Great as the crowd is, it is not so great as was expected and falls short of that for which preparations were made. The West hotel has four hundred unused new beds stacked up in its corridors and the managers say they could accommodate at least that number of guests over and above those they now have.

No one is seen running around hunting a square meal. On the contrary, there seems to be at present quite sufficient accommodations for all comers, and in spite of the showery weather all appear to be having a good time. Unless the day's arrivals change this condition of things the gloomy predictions as to the capacity of Minneapolis to handle a national convention will fall to the ground.

The attempt to revive in the hotel corridors this morning the enthusiasm and hurrah of yesterday was not a success. Occasionally bands and uniformed clubs marched through the corridor of the West, making it lively for a time, but though there was a big crowd in the corridor at all times, no one seemed inclined to shout.

A query from a tall, stout gentleman concerning "the matter with James G. Blaine" evoked one half-hearted assertion that the man from Maine was "all right," but no one seemed much interested in either the question or the response.

The North Dakota people added to the Blaine enthusiasm in the street shortly after 10 o'clock. They started out from the West in columns of fours bearing red, white and blue plumes. The Young Men's Blaine club of Cincinnati made a fine showing as it marched through Hennepin avenue in open column with colored umbrellas held aloft. The Alger boom, which was scheduled to arrive at an early hour, did not arrive until 10:30. It came in with lithographed pictures of the Michigan candidate held aloft and a brass band in the lead. The Alger shout echoed through the corridors of the West hotel for a half hour and then subsided.

LITERARY BUREAUS.

They are Turning Out Much Campaign Fuel.

Minneapolis, June 7.—The only printed campaign literature that has so far made its appearance comes from the Indiana headquarters. Copies of the Blaine February letter, printed in bold type, but without a word of comment, were scattered around by the tens of thousands.

Accompanying them was a card headed: "Consider these facts."

The facts in question being figures showing that Harrison polled in Indiana nearly 25,000 more votes than Blaine; that he polled in New York 98,000 more; in West Virginia 15,000 more; in Connecticut 8,600 more.

"These are the pivotal states, the vote getter is the man we want," was the concluding comment.

The Harrison people did some other work last night. They went about quietly, but when the enemy was in bed they tore down every lithographic picture of Mr. Blaine posted in the corridor and gallery of the West hotel. When the Blaine men came down, the serious face of Benjamin Harrison alone looked down upon them from the galleries.

HALE IS CONFIDENT.

He Thinks Blaine's Friends Can Pull Him Through.

New York, June 7.—The Herald's Washington correspondent says this morning that Senator Hale called on Blaine yesterday. Afterward Mr. Hale said:

"I am confident that Mr. Blaine will not only be nominated, but that there will be only one ballot taken at Minneapolis. Blaine is entirely satisfied with the situation, but he is doing nothing to further his nomination. He is not sending out any telegrams. He is not making any suggestions, nor giving any advice to his friends at Minneapolis, who are managing his campaign. In other words, he has placed himself in their hands. Blaine, as I tell you, is taking no part in the conduct of his campaign. In proof of this he leaves to-morrow with his family for Bar Harbor. If he were conducting his campaign he would remain here."

GOOD WORK FOR BLAINE.

Harrison Delegates Ruled Out of the Convention.

Minneapolis, June 7.—The national committee remained in session until an early hour this morning and disposed of the cases of contested delegations pending after the Alabama and Mississippi cases were acted upon. The principal fight was made on the Alabama case and the Harrison men, seeing that the majority was against them, ceased opposition further than to enter their protest against the action taken. All the contestants were seated, the result being a loss of about 30 votes in the Harrison column. This is an average of the assertions of both sides, the Blaine men claiming a gain of 40 and the Harrisonites conceding 20.

The contest will be resumed before the committee on credentials and continued, if necessary, before the convention.

CONVENTION NOTES.

Stray Gossip Gathered Among the Delegates.

Minneapolis, June 7.—Gen. J. W. Husted, of Westchester county, N. Y., is reported to be much worse and it is said Mrs. Husted has been summoned to Minneapolis.

The New Hampshire delegation as was intimated yesterday, have revised their poll of yesterday and now stand four for Harrison, remaining scattering. This was a gain of one for the president.

BLAINE'S FAUCET.

How the News Was Received on 'Change.

This afternoon when a dispatch was read on the floor of the Produce Exchange announcing Sloat Fassett, of New York, as permanent chairman of the Minneapolis convention, the Blainiacs went wild. When the cheering had subsided, a prominent republican asked:

"What is this Fassett, anyway?"

"Oh, he's the faucet of Blaine's barrel," said Sam Backus.

And the republican could not help joining in the roar of laughter which greeted the sally.

NOT DEAD YET.

Father Dannenhofer Very Low, but Still Living.

Word was received at the Bee office late yesterday afternoon that Father Dannenhofer, pastor of St. Peter's church, had died. The information appears to be a little premature. The prelate has been and is very low, but is still in the land of the living, his many friends will be glad to know. It is hoped, however, that Father Dannenhofer may, with his vigorous constitution, be able to successfully combat the ailment from which he is now suffering. All that medical skill can accomplish is being done. The high regard in which the priest is held was attested last evening, when on reading the announcement in the Bee, his parishioners flocked to the parochial residence. The Bee hopes to chronicle his complete recovery.

A TRIBUTE

To the Late Don Carlo Moderwell, of This City.

J. M. Peelar, Moulton Houk, C. L. France and W. H. Lovekin, a committee representing the officers and employes in the general offices of the Ohio Central lines, have adopted the following resolutions, explain themselves:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father to remove from our midst our beloved fellow clerk, Don Carlos Moderwell, who died Monday morning, June 6, 1892, in the 17th year of his age, after a brief illness; therefore be it

Resolved, That in the death of Brother Moderwell, his family have lost a loving, noble son and brother, and we, employes of the Toledo & Ohio Central Railway Co., extend to the sorrowing parents and sisters our sincere sympathy in this their greatest affliction; and while we bow in humble submission to the power and will of the Creator of all things, we realize with sorrowful hearts the sad and sudden departure of our late brother and friend.

Resolved, That the Transportation department has lost a trusted, faithful and esteemed friend and clerk; his bereaved family a devoted son and brother, and as a just tribute to his memory, a copy of these resolutions be furnished the family, as well as each of the daily papers.

THE GAS TRUSTEES

Hold a Meeting That Is Not Prolific of Great Results.

Yesterday afternoon the gas trustees held a brief, and for a time, a red-hot session. The object of the meeting, it seems, was to consider certain proposals, the acceptance of which would tend to improve the city gas plant.

The meeting was intended to be private, but reporters were present, and the matter was not therefore considered.

Mr. Backus inquired the object of the special meeting.

President Greene responded that he had something of a private nature to bring before the board, but he would not divulge it in the presence of reporters. He accused Mr. Backus of working in the interest of the Northwestern Gas company.

Mr. Backus replied that the accusation was ungenerous and untrue

After some pointed and cutting remarks President Greene said he would not bring the special subject before the board.

The Bee reporter present said he had been notified of a regular open meeting and was there to report it. He was not there, however, to pry into secrets, and would withdraw.

President Greene said he did not blame the reporters. They were there in the line of their duty, but he thought it strange if certain subjects, the publication of which would hurt the enterprise, could not be considered in private.

The Bee then withdrew, and at the close of the meeting President Greene instructed Secretary Brown to let him have a copy of the minutes.

The prime object of the meeting was not, however, considered, but will be later.

Several communications of an unimportant nature were read and acted upon.

The following claims were presented and ordered paid:

Pay roll	$1,822
Well rentals	140
Sundries	485

The matter of paying rental for the Shelley well, now fast decreasing in volume, was referred to the city solicitor.

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH.

A Resident Who Thinks His Town is Away Up in G.

Mr. J. C. Rickenbaugh, secretary of the Royal Furniture company of Grand Rapids, accompanied by his wife, is visiting his mother and brothers in this city. It is well known that Grand Rapids manufactures more furniture in a year than any other city in the country.

"Just at present," said Mr. Rickenbaugh, speaking with a Bee of the Grand Rapids furniture trade, this morning, "I am more interested and particularly pleased with what is both new and interesting in your city. I see on all sides the evidences of improvement and rapid growth. It is all quite a surprise, I assure you. But as to Grand Rapids, there never is a time when we do not have something new or interesting on the tapis. One of your ship industries is just completing a fine river boat for us, which is to be used on Grand river, to Grand Haven, giving our products an all-water route to the markets. The boat will operate largely in the interests of our furniture manufacturers.

"We have just completed our plans for the entertainment of the retail furniture dealers of the country, who will gather in Grand Rapids next July, to hold a national convention. This meeting will bring together more furniture dealers than have ever convened in this country before. While the progressive dealers throughout the land, have for many years been making semi-annual trips to Grand Rapids to select and purchase our new styles, yet next July will eclipse all former gatherings and prove to be of great benefit to our 40 or more local manufacturers and others. I think you will be surprised when I tell you how last season over 50 wholesale manufacturers of furniture whose plants are located all the way from the Mississippi to Boston, shipped to our city samples of their lines of goods and put them on exhibition and sale during the accustomed visitation of buyers here, some bringing with them as many as four car loads of their goods. The effect is like magic and gives Grand Rapids a name and fame far out. We are not surpassed as a market in the world. Grand Rapids will take part in the world's fair, and a most interesting exhibition of furniture will be made. Goods are already being prepared.

IMPORTANT CASE DECIDED

Judge Ricks' Decision Sustained by the United States Supreme Court in the Long Standing and Interesting Dillman-Hastings Case—Decree Filed To-day.

There were filed in the United States circuit court this morning a decision from the United States supreme court of more than ordinary importance and interest.

During the war Major Dillman, an officer in the United States navy, sent to a Mr. Hastings, at Findlay, monies amounting to about $12,000 for investment. Hastings wrote Dillman regularly to the effect that he was placing the money at 10 per cent.

Hastings died suddenly, but his administrators failed to find among his papers any reference to the Dillman investment. The case was taken into the courts and finally came before Judge Ricks, then United States clerk, and he in his report as special master reported a decree for Dillman of the full amount, plus 10 per cent., making the total claim $15,000.

The case was appealed and Judge Jackson overruled the 10 per cent. feature, cutting down the claim to the original $12,000.

It then went to the United States supreme court, where the decision of Special Master Ricks was ratified and a decree for the full amount and 10 per cent. interest, with an extra interest of 6 per cent. since 1886—the date of the special hearing.

The points established are these: If an agent charges a rate of interest, even if it is 10 or 25 per cent., he is responsible for that amount. Another point is, an agent must keep an accounting or all the suppositions in the case counts against him.

THE COLUMBIAN CLUB

Will Move Into the Coldham Residence July 1.

The Building to be Fixed Up Into Elegant Club Quarters—Meeting Last Evening.

Last evening at the regular meeting of the Columbian club held in Judge Harmon's room, at the court house, the board of trustees reported having leased the Coldham residence, corner of Adams and Michigan streets. The report was accepted, and the trustees were instructed to proceed with the work of remodeling the building so that the club can move into the new quarters by July 1.

Considerable work is necessary before the residence is ready for occupancy. The parlor and dining room on the lower floor are to be thrown into one and the other rooms improved and changed for billiard pool, card, and dining rooms.

The barn is to be fitted up and used temporarily for a gymnasium. It will be enlarged later, as the demand and funds may permit. The younger members all favor the athletic feature of the club.

The trustees have purchased the curtains and draperies and will buy such furniture as the family may desire to sell and the club want to use.

The meeting last night was enthusiastic. The club starts with a charter membership of 150, 80 of which is paid up in full.

A VALUABLE WORK.

It Has Just Been Compiled by State Statistician Lester.

Columbus, O., June 7.—The report of the secretary of state is now out, and the work of State Satistician John C. Lester, of Cleveland, is highly commendable.

Mr. Lester has compiled in the work many interesting facts and figures. One of the features is an official roster of officers and employes of the state departments and state institutions; also county officers; a complete list of justices of the peace, wit htheir postoffice addresses; a complete record of the proceedings of the apportionment commission, in the apportionment of state for members of the of the general assembly for the decennial period from 1891 to 1901, together with briefs and arguments in the case of mandamus before the supreme court to test the constitutionality of the apportionment; complete election statistics by congressional districts, counties and voting precincts; complete list of cities, towns, and villages of the state, showing classification and grade, as ascertained by the last federal census; also the corrected census by minor civil divisions of Ohio by counties.

The appendix of the report contains the law of the new congressional apportionment, together with a map of the state with congressional districts laid out.

A MAN AND BALLOT BOX

Serve in Settling a Political Contest.

Two Aspirants for the Favor of the Judicial Convention from Seneca County Hit Upon a Novel Plan.

Judge J. S. Bunn, of Tiffin, is in the city to-day, attending United States court.

The judge is in contest with J. W. Schaufelberger, also of Seneca county, for the common pleas judgeship, subject to the pleasure of the republican convention of that district.

As it wouldn't look well for one county to put up two candidates, it was concluded that one of the two aspirants must withdraw, as any controversy or bitterness would result in both of them being defeated.

The two candidates are well known and highly respected in Seneca county, and both of them are anxious to procure the honor, but at the same time both of them realize where a fight would land them, so they decided upon an amicable and novel method of deciding the question.

A man is employed who, with a ballot box locked and sealed, visits each delegate in Seneca county, and obtains his ballot on one of the two candidates. After all the delegates have been visited the vote is canvassed and the candidate in the majority will go before the convention, while the other pays all expenses accrued by the taking of the vote.

The man has been employed, and at the present time is engaged in taking the vote.

Cleared—Masaba, Sitka, 105, 101, ore, Cleveland.

Cleveland, June7.—Ninety cents was paid late yesterday for a pair of Marquette boats. This is the only new feature in the market. Rates from Escanaba and Ashland are steady at 65c and a dollar respectively. The supply of tonnage to-day is fairly equal to the demand and any improvement in Chicago grain trade will cause advance in ore freights.

Buffalo, June 7.—Coal shippers are again taking to-day all boats they can get. Charters: Schlesinger, Western Reserve, Iroquois. For Chicago—Tice, Kingfisher, Little Wissahickon. For Green Bay, all sixty; Monganguon, Detroit, twenty-five.

she is in an exposed position and all easterly winds will stop operations.

The Sawyer Released.

Chicago, June 7.—Advices to Elphicke this morning announced that the schooner James D. Sawyer, which stranded at Avon Point, near Cleveland, last fall, had been rescued from the sandbar which had formed around her during winter. She was taken into Lorain. Repairs will probably be made at Port Huron.

Chicago Rates.

Chicago, June 7.—To-day the collapse in lake rates extended to Lake Superior lumber trade. One firm which placed boats for 4,500,000 feet from Ashland to Chicago last week at $2.75, reported the best offer that could be obtained was $2.25. Vesselmen were holding off chartering their boats at 1 1-4c for corn to Buffalo to-day with hope that better figures would be obained. Grain was offered at 1 1-4c, but it was declined. Many line steamers must have loads and may prevent an advance.

A NURSE'S NOTES ON BABIES.

By Miss M. H. Beebe.

I want mothers everywhere to see the pictures of some babies that I took charge of after their mothers had given up all hopes of rearing them.

They had tried nearly everything in the way of foods before I took the cases.

Ruth.

Ruth was a year and a half old when I took charge of her, and was not so large as a well child at seven months. Her flesh was soft, flabby, and wet with perspiration all the time. She hardly stopped crying, did not sleep nights, and was so weak that she could scarcely sit up. No one thought she could live. I put her on lactated food, and in a few weeks her flesh was hard and solid, she slept well nights, and was running all around, as well as any child.

When I first took Alice, she was in a terrible condition—cried night and day, head all scales, no natural movement of the bowels. The trouble was improper food and too much medicine. Lactated food and good care made her what the picture shows.

Alice.

The third child, Florence, was even worse off than Ruth when I first saw her. She wanted to eat all the time, but threw off her food as soon as swallowed. Lactated food had the same magical effect in her case, and that the child is alive to-day is, I believe, due solely to the use of this pure food.

With all three of these babies nearly every food had been tried without success before I used the lactated. I could mention many other cases where the lactated was the only food that agreed. My long experience has fully proven that none of the other foods equal it in making solid flesh, and giving that perfect health which shows itself in good sleep at night, and happiness in the day time.

* * * *

The author of the above is Miss M. H. Beebe, Springfield, Mass., a nurse of long experience. The facts she describes prove that Lactated Food makes the sick baby well, and keeps the well baby a picture of health. This food is not a medicine—simply nature's substitute for mother's milk that has saved many a little one's life. All reputable druggists sell it, or it will be mailed on receipt of price—25 cents, 50 cents, or $1.00. Book of prize babies and beautiful birthday card free to any mother sending her baby's name.

The Toledo Bee

Costly and Tardy Service.

The census bulletins come dragging along too far behind date to be of any satisfactory value. The summary of cereal production in 1889 is just sent out and the population of states in 1890 is far from complete. Statistics of farm mortgages from 1880 to 1889 are not yet one-third accomplished. There must be a better way of enumerating population and tabulating statistics than the present inefficient expensive and slow method. Statistics in commercial journals antedate the official documents by months and years and are more reliable. Investigation of employes has begun before the work is half finished. It is a wretched showing for a nation that boasts of its rapid way of doing things, its ingenuity and inventive faculty. By the time the eleventh census is completed it will be an obsolete document, serviceable only as a book of reference for comparisons. Too much politics and jobbery, too much desire of every man with a finger in the pie to pull out a plum, is the chief thing that ails the business. A desire for reform an eye single to the glory of good work, and a study of old-world methods in many particulars, would be movements in the right direction.

Yesterday and To-Day.

In order to see bright skies and happy prospects to-day, the N. Y. Recorder reviews the "dark days" in its party's history. It speaks of "the starless sky" above Lincoln's renomination, of "the threatened revolution under Grant," of "the dreary outlook in the Hayes campaign," of the defeat of Blaine in '84, and of the fact that, "in '88, the party had to fight for its existence with Mr. Harrison." All these things are conceded for the glory of saying "how different the situation to-day." Does the Recorder remember that all the hallooing and hurrahing, the boasting and the assurance that is being indulged in to-day was on tap on the occasions above mentioned? And when the democrats said the party was struggling for its life, they were called falsifiers by the shortest and sharpest term?

Harrison and Blaine.

It is rather useless for anyone to contend that Messrs. Harrison and Blaine have been in accord all these months, when they have been pulling separate ways. The president was for the force bill; the secretary was not. The president was for McKinley trade restriction; the secretary was determined to punch holes in it, and he did it. The president was the jingoist in the Chilean affair; Blaine was for peace. In all of these counts, whether from principle or policy it may be hard to determine, the secretary has been nearer the people and the president has had the appearance of the scheming politician.

Beautiful Humbug.

Over 50,000 more immigrants have landed in this country during the past ten months than during a similar period of the preceding year. They come from the peasant districts of Italy, Russia and Hungary. This is the way a tax law protects American labor. We have an army of unemployed in the land who cannot live on the wages these poor destitute wretches are glad to accept. In no case on recor have protected employers failed to take all possible advantage of this pauper labor and in no place on record have they insisted upon paying them "protection wages." Beautiful humbug, this tax protection for labor.

New York state has had a lynching bee of its own, of the regular southern outrage kind. A negro was summarily dispatched at Port Jervis for brutally assaulting a respected young white woman. The organ of the metropolis which breathes fire from its nostrils every time a black fiend is strangled for a like crime in the south, says, "He deserves death, but the manner of it is deplorable, and his executioners are murderers." This is comparatively mild in that it doesn't call upon the government to annihilate anybody. But a northern outrage is so different from a southern one. The strangest part of it is that the organs which make a specialty of such outrages never hint to their dusky brothers that a cessation of the crime would mean an abolition of the penalty. Perhaps they will do this—after the campaign is over.

One United States diplomat has come home from afar with other than a political bee buzzing in his bonnet. His name is Hon. Truxton Beale and he is minister to Persia. He has shipped from Teheran a dozen or more coarse wool astrakhan sheep which he believes can be domesticated in localities in this country. The experiment, tried in England, failed on account of the winters. Of course we are sorry for that. The wool will answer for coarse carpet material, which we have not yet been able to grow here and which we pay penalty for importing. This flock of sheep will be consigned to our Uncle Jerry and he will put them on the hills of Southern California to multiply and make glad the face of the earth. All honor to Mr. Beale for doing something useful, non-political and non-partisan.

It is very plain that John C. New, who is paid a salary of $6,000 a year for staying in Russia, when there is no campaign in progress at home, was a Harrison appointee. He is having a bad colic in Minneapolis lest "Secretary Blaine's manhood shall be insulted by an ignoring of his letter of declination." In the courtesy of diplomatic affairs the head of the state department usually advises the consul-generals. Just now, the tables are turned and Mr. New is laying down the lines for his superior officer—that was. This was one of the last straws of the load.

Assuredly Gov. McKinley is for the President. He will never be able to forgive Mr. Blaine for his publicly delivered opinion of the McKinley tariff bill. Mr. McKinley should be thankful to Mr. Blaine for doing what he could to counteract its restrictive character, but he is not. He trains not with the reciprocity worshipers. In all his speeches of laudation for his measure, he has ignored the reciprocity salvation feature and its author. Now comes the time when he can bring his quiet contempt to the front.

The secretary of the American Tinned Plate association made known their grievance to Gov. McKinley. Their imporetd ore spread upon twice-taxed American sheet iron was not allowed to figure to any extent in the decorations of convention hall at Minneapolis. With the importations increasing every month, the leaders realized that there would be too much iron—y in the presence to make the tax defenders quite comfortable.

The Blaine faction say Harrison is a selfish, crafty, calculating politician who hopes for renomination and re-election through the aid and influence of his office-holders and beneficiaries. The Harrison faction say the Blaine following consists of disappointed ones who failed to get a pull at the public purse and so want their revenge and another man for trial. Probably all these republican authorities are correct.

The chief hotel in Minneapolis has cleared out all the billiard tables and put a monster drinking bar the entire circuit of the vast room to accommodate the party which wonders why the prohibitionists do not vote with their friends and allies, the republicans, to help defeat the drunken and wicked democrats.

Hon. Albion Tourgee says the negro "prays to be delivered from persecution." Hon. Walter Thomas, of Ohio, says the colored voters hold the balance of power and can control the next election." Doesn't consist very well; a persecuted people with the control of the government in their hands.

Kentucky has been pegging away a round hundred years. The Washington Post gracefully says "to have produced Henry Clay, Henry Watterson and John G. Carlisle is fame enough for any state."

It was Sidney Smith who prayed to be saved from his friends. A good many men since Salney's time have had occasion to repeat the invocation. Some of them are on the griddle in Minneapolis to-day.

The Methodist conference delegates have been doing the Black Hills. They were not taken to "the extensive tin mines," which was a strange oversight.

Field Marshal Halstead as a self-instituted peacemaker between the Blaine and Harrison factions might be considered a good deal of a comedy burlesque.

Who will perform the Gen. Gibson act at Minneapolis?

"Give a man room to sit down, read and converse. We have our clubs, where we may pass the time. Shall we stamp with utter condemnation the poor man who wants his little club? He must have it, and should have it."

These are the expressed sentiments of Rector Rainsford in his plea for the Christianized saloon. There's a little old-fashioned notion lurking around that a man's home, where his wife and children must stay, be it ever so unlavitng through poverty, is a pretty good place for him to sit down in to "read and converse." The rest of the family need "a little club" quite as much as he does.

We are gravely informed that "Children in the south are to be taught the art of making tin plate in school." Senator Sherman told the Buckeyes, in one of his great campaign speeches last fall, that "any school boy or girl in Ohio could dip the sheets into the melted tin ore, without practice or training." If the omniscient senator knew what he was talking about, it must be quite a superfluous branch of study in school. Who is to teach the art, when and where it is to be done and why it is confined to the south isn't mentioned, but that is no great matter; of course the bare statement will stand.

The first copy of "The Vanguard," a new People's party paper, published in Chicago, is at hand. Its editors and proprietors are Mrs. A. P. Stevens, formerly of Toledo, and a member of the Bee staff, and Mr. Lester C. Hubbard, former editor of the Farmers' Voice. The Vanguard is a neat, well-printed 8-page weekly, bright, crisp and up to the times. That it will be an able exponent of the principles of the party whose cause it champions is assured. The initial number is highly creditable and the Bee extends congratulations.

Commenting on the plea against sectionalism in Gov. Beaver's Gettysburg speech, Col. Shepard rather disconsolately says:

"With old soldiers talking in that strain, with their hearts warm toward their former enemies, there is nothing left for those who did not carry a gun and for the generations now coming on the scene, save to forget and forgive."

It is rather too bad in the governor to interfere with the colonel's campaign program in this manner.

Richard Henry Stoddard always says something when he gets started. For instance:

"The June number of Harper's Magazine is just such a number as the majority of its readers appear to like, supposing, that is, they are satisfied with what its editor chooses to furnish them month after month, and we presume they are, or it would not be our most popular periodical."

For the people who like this sort of literary criticism, this is just the sort of thing they like.

William Waldorf Astor has taken up permanent residence in London. He remarks that "he will collect his rents in America and his thoughts in England." A great many American millionaires collect their profits in this country and spend them in Europe, which means the same thing, only Waldorf is a "literary feller" and puts his speech to correspond.

A "special from the Washington bureau of the Mail and Express" divulges the secret that "Secretary Rusk is out openly for Harrison!" Mercy, what a surprise party!

LET'S HAVE FAIR PLAY

As to the City's Street Railroad Interests.

Toledoans have reason to indulge a feeling of pride as to the street car system of the city. In the past few years much work has been accomplished for the betterment of the service, but it is yet incomplete. The city council has passed ordinance after ordinance on the subject, and there are still others pending. One thing is certain, the city fathers cannot consider too soon the dangers to which man and beast are subjected by reason of the imperfect tracks on the principal thoroughfares. Damage suits must sooner or later follow in large numbers, and the general taxpayer will be compelled to liquidate claims for which there is not the slightest necessity.

An ordinance is now pending in the council for the reconstruction of some of these tracks, and action should be taken without the see-sawing which has prevailed with relation to other legislation touching the street railroads. It is not the province of the Bee to advocate the claims of one company as against the other, but it appeals for fair play and for consideration of the interests involved. The Robisons are entitled to much credit for the push and energy thus far displayed; it has cost dearly in court and other expenses, and while nothing should be passed for their especial benefit, it is apparent that the improvements contemplated should be started at once, and citizens generally will be glad to see the council take the necessary steps to bring them about in a spirit of fairness to both companies.

BOOMING RIVERS.

The Mississippi Rises a Foot in Twenty-four Hours.

Burlington, Ia., June 7.—The Mississippi river has risen nearly a foot in 24 hours. Should a heavy wind come up the expanse of water now flowing before, this city would be turned into an ocean of breakers which would dash many buildings and other property to pieces.

Travel has been suspended on the roads leading north from Burlington on account of high water. The river is ten miles wide here, the Illinois side being inundated back to the bluffs. Much fine farm land is from two to ten feet under water and in many places the farmers have had to move to this or neighboring cities, leaving their homes at the mercy of the waves.

REVIEWED THE TROOPS.

Budapest, June 7.—The emperor of Austria reviewed the garrison troops today. The Hungarians greeted him with loyal enthusiasm on the twenty-fifth anniversary of his coronation as king of Hungary.

LET US ALL IN,

Say a Majority of the School Board,

When the Teachers' Appointments are Considered—Janitors' Pay—Lively Session of the Educational Solons.

The prosy old school board is developing into a live, wide-awake body, and actually indulges in regular councilmanic rows quite often.

The old board has been transacting business in a cut-and-dried manner for so long that the infusion of young blood and modern ideas has awakened the old members from their Rip Van Winkle sleep, and of course they are in a bad humor.

The truant officer's report was the first regular business introduced at the meeting last evening. It showed 115 visits made; four boys sent to the industrial farm, and one girl sent to Delaware.

The trustees of the Manual Training school requested that the board make a levy of seven-twentieths of a mill on the general tax fund for the maintainance of that institution. The finance committee also recommended a levy of five mills for school purposes. A resolution embracing both recommendations was adopted.

Superintendent Compton reported the total monthly attendance at 13,525, with an average daily attendance of 9,847.

The committee on commencement reported all arrangements for that event completed. Tickets will be given out as follows: Members of the board of education, 8 each; trustees, 5 each; members of the class, 8 each; press, 20; clergy, 20; high school teachers, 60.

On the roll call of the committees, the chairman of the building committee stated that that committee was ready to report on the revision of the janitors' salaries. There was not a full attendance, Messrs. Kohn and Scott being absent, and Mr. Eversman, who is fathering the project, requested that the reading of the report be passed for a time.

The treasurer reported the financial account as follows:

Balance on hand June 6	$26,627.15
Orders paid	17,935.57
Balance on hand	8,691.58
Orders outstanding	783.42
Balance available	7,906.16

Mr. Scott took his seat during the reading of this report. At its conclusion, Mr. Schlingman insisted that the report on the janitors' salaries be read. Mr. Eversman objected, but the report was read just the same. The following is the schedule, as submitted:

	Present salary.	Proposed salary.
Henry Deyman, Central	$1,000	$1,000
Mrs. H. Bente, Sherman	250	432
P. Hendricks, Nebraska	400	400
Wm. Creighton, Erie	250	276
M. Jennsen, Stickney	250	276
Mrs. Lewis, Jefferson	250	276
Mrs. Sweeney, Wash'ton	250	276
W. R. Cook, E. Toledo	250	276
Mrs. Broettcher, Broad'y	250	276
Mrs. Tobin, Warren	250	276
Mrs. Dankart, Segur	250	276
Mrs. Kruse, St. Clair	220	240
Louis Kurz, Hoag	300	300
Mrs. Ward, Raymer	300	336
Jno. Ryder, Ontario	190	216
D. W. Pugh, Monroe	190	216
Mrs. Libke, Smith	190	216
Mrs. Murphy, Illinois	190	216
Mrs. Darmaner, Lagrange	190	216
Mrs. Tom, S. E. Toledo	216	240
Mrs. Donell, Manhattan	108	144
Mrs. Elner, Parkland	144	144
Mrs. Miller, Broadway add	72	96
Mrs. Christeb, Ironville	75	96
Mrs. Whitmore, Spring st.	96	96
Mrs. Feller, Junction	48	48
Mrs. Graper, Howland	36	60
Mrs. Konker, Tremainsville	48	60
Mrs. Bolles, Walbridge	36	36

During the reading of the schedule, Mr. Kohn came in, much to the satisfaction of Mr. Eversman.

At the conclusion Mr. Eversman moved that the report be rejected. He was of the opinion that the increase was not enough to warrant a change.

Mr. Schlingman stated that he didn't think the increase was sufficient, but it was the best the board could do at present. He moved that the report be adopted, which was seconded.

Mr. Kohn then called attention to the fact that the tax valuation had been increased and that the board could well afford to pay living wages.

When the vote was called the chair struck a snag in the form of two motions. Mr. Schlingman's motion was declared out of order and Mr. Eversman's was adopted by the following vote—Broer, nay; Eversman, aye; Hubbard, aye; Schlingman, nay; Shuck, nay; Scott, aye; Kohn, aye; Trost, aye; Zirwas, nay.

Mr. Eversman moved that the janitors of all eight-room buildings be allowed $20 a month and all other buildings in proportion.

Mr. Trost moved an amendment that all salaries be increased 25 per cent. excepting the central building.

Mr. Broer moved a second amendment that action be deferred until vacation.

Mr. Schlingman moved to lay the matter on the table. Here was a beautiful parliamentary knot, but Mr. Hubbard untangled it by putting Mr. Schlingman's motion to table the project. It was lost.

Mr. Trost moved that the salaries be increased 25 per cent. excepting the central building, and that be increased 10 per cent., which was seconded.

Mr. Kohn moved to amend, by including all buildings on the 25 per cent. basis, which was accepted by Mr. Trost.

This was followed by more discussion. On looking the schedule over it was found that certain janitors paid their own house rent. The per cent. plan would not equalize matters, so it was concluded to postpone action for two weeks and then take up each janitor individually.

Mr. Rosmand, representing a Jewish congregation in the city, was present and stated that they were endeavoring to establish a Sunday school, but their financial condition would not admit of the expenditure of a great amount of money. They needed seats and he would ask the board if they had any old seats that could be given away.

The superintendent of buildings stated that there were plenty of old seats to spare.

Mr. Kohn moved that 50 of them be sold to the congregation for $1, which was approved.

Mr. Schlingman thought the old iron seats were worth more than that.

Mr. Kohn stated that it was about time to appoint the teachers for the next term of school. He understood that it had been the custom of the teachers committee to take this matter in hand and dispose of it at their pleasure and report at the meeting before the close of the term and that ended it. He inquired and was informed that the teachers committee always reported at the last meeting. Mr. Kohn objected to this for the reason that he did not think that such an important matter should be disposed of by two or three members. He thought the other members should have a say; it would be best to meet as a body and discuss the question. Then it was not just, in his opinion, that the decision of the board with regard to teachers which were not reappointed, should be withheld until the last moment, when it would be impossible for them to procure another situation. He moved that when the board adjourn it would do so to meet in one week, when the subject could be discussed by all members.

Mr. Schlingman, who has had his own way in this matter for some time, raised a big objection, but it did no good, for when a vote was taken the special meeting was approved.

The school furniture men were then given an opportunity. The Central Labor union had obtained a full list list of the furniture factories in the supposed trust, which was submitted.

J. W. Fisher, representing the United States Furniture company, was present, and made a speech in favor of his cause. The board adjourned without taking any action.

NAPOLEON DOINGS.

Teachers Appointed—City Improvements Started.

Napoleon, June 7.—(Special)—The reemployment of teachers in the union schools has been made, with two exceptions, that of Prof. Weaver, for six years superintendent, and his wife, a grammar teacher.

These two applications were postponed until a later date. The corps of teachers as now exist are: J. F. Beck, principal; Catharine Seys, assistant principal.

For the Grammar, Intermediate and Primary schools the following have been elected, though not as yet assigned to any particular room: Misses Harriet Hudson, Mayme Wilson, Nettie Hildred, Belle King, Mary Haag, Mary Barnes, Fanny Knupp, Carrie Bloomfield, Lulu Cooner, Messrs. Weisbach and Thompson.

At a meeting of the village council last evening the plans and specifications for the big sewer from Scott street to the river were adopted with a few amendments, and the mayor ordered to advertise for bids. The estimated cost of construction is $5,135. It will be constructed of either brick or tile, to be decided at the time of opening the bids.

The council also opened bids for engineer of fire department. The bids were nine in number and all at the same salary, viz.: $45. The matter was laid over until an adjourned session to be held Thursday night. James Shay, the present incumbent, will in all probability be fined for neglect of duty. A petition signed by nearly all members of the three divisions of the department was submitted, asking that Shay be fired, and if such request was not granted, threatening to disband.

Republicans Kill Each Other at Primary Elections in Kentucky.

DOUBLED THEIR FORTUNES

Pullman and Carolin Unite the Wealth.

Wedding in Chicago of Two People Who Count Their Cash in Millions.

Chicago, June 7.—The wedding of Miss Harriet Pullman, daughter of George M. Pullman, founder of the Pullman Car company, and heiress to the bulk of his great wealth, and Frank M. Carolin, of San Francisco, was quietly celebrated at the residence of the bride's parents on Michigan avenue, this afternoon.

According to the original program the wedding was to have been a brilliant high noon affair in the presence of a large number of guests, many of them coming from San Francisco and New York by special trains. Carte blanche had been given to the florists, and the extension of the Pullman mansion at a total outlay of over $100,000, including one of the finest palm houses in the country, had been hurried forward especially for this event.

All these plans, however, were suddenly changed owing to the death a couple of weeks ago of Mrs. E. C. Pullman, mother of George M. Pullman, and consequently grandmother of the bride.

Miss Pullman is not only a great favorite in Chicago, but is equally popular in New York, London and Paris. She was educated in New York, having graduated in 1889 from the Fifth Avenue school. She is of medium height, has a slight figure, and is a decided brunette.

She has a wealth of black hair and large expressive black eyes. When very young she showed a decided talent for music and recitation and this talent has been greatly cultivated. When at school, although by far the wealthiest of the scholars, she was remarkably unassuming in her demeanor, and to-day, although petted alike at home and in society, as is natural to the heiress of many millions, she is as unassuming as when a child.

The groom is a millionaire several times over, and in appearance is the direct opposite of the bride, having blue eyes and light hair. He is about five feet ten in height. The wedding trousseau was made in Paris and was one of the most magnificent ever sent over to this country, costing what to many people would be a good-sized fortune.

CURRENT COMMENT.

We do not think that Mr. Blaine will be nominated at Minneapolis, although we shall be delighted if he is made the republican candidate; nor do we believe that President Harrison will be renominated.—Jersey City Journal.

A bayonet with a ballot on its point would be a good design for the Harrison campaign; while a statesman picking the pocket of an American citizen with one hand and passing over the loot to a foreigner with the other would stand for "Blaine and Reciprocity."—New York World.

When a republican organ says "Gen. Russell A. Alger is too good a man to run with a lot of soreheads" it should explain what it means. From all accounts both Harrison and Blaine boomers are coquetting with the Michigan lumber baron. He is the "fellow like Phelps," who would be handy to have around after the convention adjourns.—Chicago Times.

At the negro lynching in Port Jervis, N. Y., the other day, the best citizens are reported to have looked on with entire approval. All this happened within two days after the meetings had been held in all the leading cities of the north to protest against the lynchings of the negroes south of Mason and Dixon's line. It looks as if the call covered a too limited extent or territory.—Boston Herald.

The trial of the boy murderer in Newark brings out facts regarding certain forms of human nature which we hoped had perished centuries ago. Such depravity exhibited in the nineteenth century is a surprise and a shock to the believers in the efficacy of our present civilization to raise the entire human family above the level of the brute creation.—New York Mail and Express.

The senate adds $11,000,000 to the pension appropriation bill as it passed the house, making the total for the next fiscal year a $27,000,000 pension bill to the house in 1878 said the amount might go up to $35,000,000 and then would decline. The maximum is now likely to be $200,000,000. Our list of pensioners now exceeds the great standing army of 500,000 in Germany.—Pittsburg Post.

The country will be glad to believe with President Harrison that "an era of unspeakable prosperity is now beginning." But when it is referred, for the causes of such prosperity, to "commercial competition"—meaning reciprocity—and to "the floating of the stars and stripes over trans-Atlantic steamers"—meaning the granting of American registers as a special act of grace—it can't help asking itself: If these things be so good in small samples, why should they not be better in the full pattern?—Philadelphia Record.

It seems that all of the misplaced commas and other clerical errors in the original McKinley law occur in just such places that their correction lowers the duty on luxuries only. Sweetened chocolate enters very little into the list of things necessary to the masses, while a warm coat is necessary to everybody during winetr. The commas in the chocolate paragraph of the bill were evidently thrown in with a spade, with a view to subsequent correction; but when woolens were being provided for the punctuation maks were distributed with superlative care.—Savannah News.

Whatever may the ultimate result of Dr. Parkhurst's fight against the social vice and excise question, there has already occurred one thing which the Herald can vouch for as having been accomplished. The sentence of Hattie Adams and others of the ilk has frightened the wealthier proprietors of establishments of the same vicious character, and there has been a decided exodus of these women from town. Their wealth and facility of securing information concerning the threat of danger have both worked for the benefit of the community. It is no exaggeration to say that the number of this sort of women in the city has been reduced by one-half.—New York Herald.

DEMAND THE DIFFERENCE.

In buying baking powders, as well as anything else, insist upon having the worth of your money. If another brand is urged upon you in place of the Royal, bear in mind that it has from 27 to 50 per cent. less leavening strength than the Royal, as shown by the official chemical tests, which is equal to from 13½ to 25 cents per pound less value than the Royal. If you buy a low class powder, see that you are charged a correspondingly lower price.

'TWAS A LONG SESSION

Held by the Board of Councilmen Last Night.

Important Ordinances Referred Back to Committees—Gas Trustees' Salary—Miscellaneous Business.

All members of the board of councilmen except Mr. Miller were present at the meeting last evening. There were a number of important matters on the schedule, but the very warm temprature was largely instrumental in cutting the discussions short. The session, however, was long drawn out, and the crowd in the lobby, by their talk and noise, also created considerable confusion during the evening.

The full street railway lobby for both companies was on hand working for and against the ordinance directing the Consolidated and Robison companies to jointly reconstruct the tracks used by them both on Adams, Summit, Ottawa, Broadway and Monroe streets.

When the ordinance was read Mr. Gill moved that it be referred back to the committee, as he considered the present ordinance of the city sufficient to compel a proper repair of these tracks.

There was a short desultory discussion on this motion, and Mr. Lang expressed himself as opposed to the ordinance, while Mr. D. Robison asked that it be passed.

When the ballot was finally taken the motion to refer was carried by a vote of 12 to 5.

On motion of Mr. Gill the city engineer was then instructed to notify the street railway company to properly repair these tracks.

Under the call for new business, Mr. Gill presented resolutions for new sewers in the alley between Platt and Oswald streets from Starr avenue to Fourth street; in the same alley from Fourth street to Second street, and in Second street to Platt, to First street to Bridge street. These resolutions were referred to the committee on sewers.

A resolution presented by Mr. Walker was adopted, directing the clerk to advertise for bids for an artesian well at the corner of Missouri street and Detroit avenue.

Mr. Walker also presented resolutions to level the alley between Nebraska avenue and Blum street and to build a sewer in the alley between Grand avenue and Elmwood avenue. These were referred to committees.

Another resolution was introduced to pave Dorr street from Lenk to Waite avenue. Referred.

In the business from the upper board, when the ordinance was read granting to the Pluto Oil company the right to lay a long pipe line for carrying fuel oil, Mr. Manchester moved that it be laid upon the table for the reason that to lay this line a number of paved streets would be torn up. This motion was lost by a tie vote, but the ordinance only passed one reading, as the motion to suspend the rules for a second reading was lost by a vote of 10 ayes and 9 nays.

The ordinance granting the Paragon Refining company a similar franchise was tabled on motion of Mr. Gill.

The ordinance increasing the price of hucksters' licenses from $20 per year to $75 caused some warm debate, and Mr. Gill moved to lay it on the table, but the motion was lost on a vote of 10 to 7. The ordinance passed the first reading, but the rules were not suspended for a second reading by a vote of 7 ayes to 11 nays.

The resolution fixing the salary of the gas trustees at $1 per year caused a few remarks, and Mr. Manchester presented an amendment fixing the salary at $600 per year, which was adopted by a vote of 14 to 4, and the resolution as amended was adopted.

A DAM BREAKS.

Great Damage Caused at Union City.

Erie, Pa., June 7.—Clark's mill dam at Union City burst and a wall of water swept through the town, carring 30 houses from their foundations, and while many persons were badly hurt, none lost their lives. demolishing frame buildings adjoining. The demolishing fram buildings adjoining. The Keystone block was undermined and fell. Goodenough's jewelry store and the rear of the postoffice building and Cooper's planing mill were all wrecked. Hundreds of horses and cattle were drowned. The damage will reach not less than $100,000. The towns of Garfield, Pittsfield, Columbus and many other places are under water. At Pittsfield, the operator, J. E. Mead, stood at his post and worked at his instruments with the water three feet deep in the office and the building surrounded by debris and roaring flood.

A BALLADE OF JESTS.

The merry wits of bygone years
Are dead and buried long ago,
To dust have turned the courtly ears
They gladdened with their lively flow
Of quip and gibe on belle and beau;
For them there were no deathless bays,
Their fame or names we cannot know:
Where are the jests of other days?

Gone are the dames and cavaliers,
The kings who used to come and go,
When jesters mocked them from their fears,
Or cowered beneath the surly blow;
For jesters then as now had woe,
And were not ever fed with praise,
At times their quips fell flat and low:
Where are the jests of other days?

The snarling critic sadly sneers
At jokelets bandied to and fro,
And every whippersnapper jeers
At fancy's oddest, brightest glow,
And relegates to realms below
Our quaint, illusive, merry lays,
And will not give us half a show:
Where are the jests of other days?

Envoi.

Prince, to some old newsdealer go,
Of comic papers make a raise,
In them your answers lies, for lo!
There are the jests of other days.

The railway car known as "Placer County on Wheels" (a traveling combination intended primarily to advertise the prolific fruit region of Northern California) is lighted interiorally and externally by 65 incandescent lamps, which are operated by a complete lighting plant in a corner of the car. The service is so satisfactory that Mr. Leak, the owner, is now figuring for the equipment of an entire train with similar apparatus.

A Swiss chemist has, it is said, not only discovered how to dispose of ordinary coal smoke, but how to turn it into a highly that by burning 125 tons of coal at a cost of $155 and making full use of it for steam raising purposes he can at the same time secure, by a simple process he has invented, four tons of sulphate of ammonia from the smoke produced by the coal. The money value of this will be $240.

The custom of placing crape on the door of a house where there has been a recent death had its origin in the ancient English heraldic customs and dates as far back, at least, as the year 1100 A. D. At that period hatchments or armorial ensigns were placed in front of houses when the nobility and gentry died. These hatchments were of diamond shape and contained the family arms quartered and colored with sable.

Mayalipuram, India, is graced with seven of the most remarkable temples in the world, each of these unique temples of worship having been fashioned from solid granite boulders. The "Hevasa-Goda-Cha," the largest of the seven, is three and one-half stories high; its outlines resemble those of an Atlantic steamship. The inside of the boulder has been chiseled away until the walls do not exceed eight inches in thickness.

It is rather curious that in 1762 the principal sovereigns reigning in Europe were the third of their respective names. They were George III., king of Great Britain; Charles III., king of Spain; Augustus III., king of Poland; Frederick III., king of Prussia; Charles Emanuel III., king of Sardinia; Mustapha III., emperor of the Turks; Peter III., emperor of Russia; Francis III., duke of Modena, and Frederick III., duke of Saxe-Gotha.

Small convex mirrors of glass were made in Germany before the sixteenth century and were in demand until comparatively modern times. They were produced by blowing small glass globes into which, while they were hot, was passed through a pipe a mixture of tin, antimony and rosin. When the globe was coated inside it was allowed to cool and was afterward cut into convex lenses, which formed small but well-defined images.

A society has been formed in London under the title of the Witnesses' Protection society. The objects of the society are to protect witnesses from insult by counsel, to put the matter of contempt of court into the hands of a jury and to raise a fund to indemnify conumacious witnesses from pecuniary loss, provided always that the questions they refuse to answer reflect upon their honor and are at the same time irrelevant to the issues of the case.

At the felling of an ancient hollow oak in a German forest, when the tree crashed to the ground it disclosed a human skeleton in excellent preservation. From his long boots, powder flask and other articles found he appeared to have been a hunter, and it was concluded that the unfortunate man, in climbing the tree in pursuit of some wounded animal or bird, had slipped into the hollow trunk, had been unable to extricate himself, and so had perished miserably of starvation in his ready-prepared oak coffin.

FOR LIFE OR DEATH.

The year 1781 was a dark and gloomy one for our forefathers, who were then struggling for liberty.

In South Carolina affairs were then in a critical condition. General Greene made an unsuccessful attempt on the British post of 96 and withdrew his men beyond the Tiger and Broad rivers.

Lord Rawdon followed him, but could not draw the patriot general into an engagement.

At that period a plain and unassuming house, a one-story building, neatly whitewashed and surrounded by a fence, was the home of Mrs. Heath, who lived with her two daughters, while her son George was in Washington's army, fighting for freedom.

Kate, the elder of the daughters, was a beautiful girl of 16 summers. One evening, as Kate was standing at the cottage door, she beheld two mounted officers approaching. They were richly dressed, and one of them she recognized as Lord Rawdon, the commander of the British forces in that section of the country.

They rode up to her, and Rawdon leaned over in his saddle and said in a kind voice:

"Well, miss, can you let me have the use of a room for a few minutes?"

"Yes, sir; our house is open to you."

They entered the house and went into a small room to hold a consultation. Kate thought they might have something important to say, so she concluded to play the part of eavesdropper.

She cautiously approached the door and looked through a crevice. Rawdon and his colonel were seated before a table on which lay maps. They were examining them closely while Rawdon was explaining them to the colonel.

"Here is Greene's camp," said he "and here is ours. We must make a bold strike, and if it be successful, Greene will be destroyed."

"We must crush Greene, colonel. I do not want to go back to England and let it be said that I was outgeneraled by a rebel. No, never!" exclaimed Rawdon, rising to his feet.

"Then we make that attack at daylight, do we not?" asked the colonel.

"Let us go now. But hold! what is the countersign for the pickets to-night, my Lord?"

"England," answered Lord Rawdon, lowering his voice.

Their horses were saddled, and the officers were soon on their way. Kate watched them till they were out of sight, and then prepared for her perilous journey. She threw a shawl over her head and went to the stable. Her fleet-footed horse seemed to understand her, for he gave a loud whinny.

Our heroine saddled Selim, led him from the stable, and was soon riding toward Greene's camp, which was eight miles distant.

The British pickets were four miles distant, and she would be compelled to pass through their lines; but as she was in possession of the countersign she did not fear the result.

Soon Kate saw the picket's bayonet gleam in the moonlight and heard him cry out:

"Who goes there?"

"A friend, with the countersign."

"Advance friend, and give the countersign."

She approached the picket, and whispered:

"England!"

"All right; pass on."

She had to pass four miles yet ere she would be safe, so she urged on her steed. Before she had gone 100 yards from Guy Jackson a dozen mounted Britons rode furiously up to the picket, and their leader cried out:

"Did any one pass this post a short time since?"

"Yes, sir," was the picket's reply.

"Do you know who it was?"

"I do; it was Miss Heath."

"Had she the countersign, sir?"

"She had."

"I fear she is safe. Forward men! If she escapes Greene is saved. A hundred golden guineas and a commission to the man who catches her!"

Kate soon hear the sound of her pursuers and she pushed on faster. It was a race for life or death.

But her enemies gained upon her, and one of them seemed bent on catching her, for he was some yards in advance of his comrades.

"Halt, you cursed rebel!"

These were his last words, for Kate fired, and the bullet crashed through his brain.

The others did not stop to look at their dead comrade, but pressed on. They neared her again, and another trooper received his death wound. The remainder halted, and a moment afterward Kate heard the American picket cry out:

"Who goes there?"

"Kate Heath!" cried our heroine, as she dashed through the line.

The soldier had raised his gun, but when he heard her name it was lowered, and he answered:

"All right!"

The American camp was reached; Kate threw herself from the saddle and entered the general's tent and found him engaged in writing. He raised his eyes, then rose to his feet and said:

"You come here at a late hour, Miss Heath."

The brave girl told her story, and the patriot grasped her hand, while the tears trickled down his war-worn cheeks.

"Thank God! you have saved my army, Miss Heath, I can never repay you."

"I want no payment. The thought that I have done my duty and the thanks of Nathanael Greene are worth more than gold and diamonds," was the heroic reply.

"You need rest. Here, sleep in my tent to-night, while I seek a resting place among my men," said the kind-hearted Greene.

Kate enjoyed a good rest that night, and in the morning Gen. Greene came to her and joyfully exclaimed:

"Good news! Lord Rawdon is in full retreat. We took a prisoner this morning who says you frustrated their plans and saved the army. God bless you for that good act! But I must leave you now, for I am going to follow Rawdon and teach him that we can fight. When are you going home?"

"In a few minutes, general."

"Good-bye, and may you have a safe journey."

Kate Heath lived to see the war close and peace and plenty spread their wings over the land, and not long afterward she ws wedded to Walter Gordon, who had been a colonel in the American army. —Boston Globe.

COMEDY.

A sensible Girl—He (timidly): "Now, that we are engaged, I—I presume I may—may—kiss you as much as I please?" She (encouragingly): "Yes, indeed. Make the most of your time, dear. There's no telling how long an engagement will last nowadays, you know."—New York Weekly.

Manager (proudly)—This theater has existed a hundred years. Baron—Very good, but don't you think the ballet ought to have been renovated in the interim?—Fliegende Blaetter.

"I've got an idea for an opera," said one writer to another. "Something new in the way of a plot, eh?" "No; plot be hanged. I know a man who wants to sell an elephant cheap."—Washington Star.

HER RED STOCKINGS GONE

And She Wanted the Detective to Examine

The Servant to See If She Had Them On—A Fussy Old Lady Worrying the Police Department—Only One of a Class.

For some time past an old lady who is is described as having wheels in her head has been a source of no little amusement and considerable trouble at the police station. It seems some time ago she missed a pair of red stockings, and she got it into her head that her hired girl stole them. She complained, and the detectives, to get rid of her, looked up the girl's record. She was found to be above suspicion, and the matter was dropped as far as the detectives were concerned. Not so with the old lady. Her stockings were gone, and she was going to put the law on that girl or bust in the attempt. Day after day she hounded the police station, and finally was turned over from one official to the other as a joke on the afflicted listener to her woes. Yesterday afternoon she was sent to Detective Nichter, and after a prolonged review of the case that worthy gentleman bid her good-bye with the following words:

"My dear madam, the only thing you can do now is to swear out a warrant, or, if you say, we will watch her next Sunday, and if we find the red stockings on her we can make a case."

With that he vanished, and the old lady sat down to wait for Chief Raitz.

This is only one of the instances where the poor servant girl is wronged, turned from the house and branded as a thief without proper evidence and with no chance to prove her innocence. Many a poor girl is made to suffer for something she has never done, and nine times out of ten, after she has been discharged, the missing articles have been found just where the owner mislaid them.

Von Moltke had a great antipathy to the wearing of fine apparel. It is related that once when he attended a meeting of the Order of St. John, as the servant helped him off with his overcoat he was discovered to be in his shirt sleeves. His dress coat hung forgotten in his bedroom.

Gustave Dore, it is said, had unquestionable taste on women's looks. He seldom drew a beautiful woman. His abnormal sense of the grotesque seemed to have destroyed his sense of actual loveliness. At the opera he would scan the boxes, and if he discovered some pale, attenuated, expressionless face he would say: "Qu'elle est belle."

There is good reason to hope that Guy de Maupassant, the French author, will soon recover his mental powers. He is now allowed to go walking in the gardens of the institution where he is confined several hours each day, and to receive two or three friends once a week. He is, however, obliged to abstain from reading.

CHANGE of LIFE whether in early girlhood or later on in adult years of the gentler sex is considered a dangerous and momentous period. HUNTING FOR THE DEAD

Awful Scenes in the Flooded Districts.

Rockefeller Contributes a Hundred Thousand

Dollars to the Relief of the Sufferers—Latest News from the Awful Disaster.

Titusville, Pa., June 7.—Titusville at night presented a more sombre appearance than in the day time. The electric lights were out and if it were not for the kindly moon the city would have been in darkness.

At the meeting of the relief committee, over which Mayor Emerson presided, several reports were presented. C. N. Payne, of the National Transit Co., and Rev. Mr. Rowley reported arrangements with the different undertakers for the proper interment of the dead. All that could be were embalmed, and the majority of them looked natural, with the exception of occasional cuts and bruises which marred their appearance to a slight extent.

The various sects will take care of their own, and members of their faith are interred in their respective cemeteries. The expense of the interments will be borne by the relief committee.

There are a number of bodies which it will be absolutely necessary to inter to-day if the health of the survivors is to be considered. How many this will be has not yet been determined. At a subsequent day from 40 to 60 burials will take place, it being now estimated by the conservative people that no less than 100 lives have been sacrificed.

Reports have reached here that a number of bodies have been taken out of the water between here and Oil City, but as yet these reports have not been verified. It is the general opinion, however, that at least 35 or 40 bodies have been sent down the stream and are liable to float some distance toward Pittsburg before they are recovered.

Some day in the near future the members of the committee recommended that general union memorial services be held. No definite action was taken on this, as it is not thought prudent to act hastily, owing to the cloud that obscured the total death rate and the improbability of the speedy recovery of the bodies.

The county commissioners were to use all diligence in repairing the Franklin street bridge, as owing to its having been washed away it is impossible at present to reach the Catholic or Hebrew cemeteries. Travel on the railroad bridge has been interdicted on account of its alleged insecurity. A finance committee, consisting of the cashiers of the Second and Commercial banks, and the president of the board of trade, was appointed. The charitably inclined can wire their contributions to this committee and they are urged to do it speedily as money will be very badly needed.

It is estimated that the damage done to the city streets and bridges alone will reach, if not exceed, $40,000. Whole sections of thoroughfares have been completely washed out by the rapidly moving waters, and it will be a long time before the city will be able to repair the damage, unless outside aid in a substantial quantity is required.

The Oil City Fuel Gas Company has promised to have the mains in good order and connections made so that at least a modicum of heat can be obtained wherewith to cook a meal. This is something the citizens have been deprived of for the past 36 hours, the supply of natural gas having been cut off entirely.

City Hall presented scenes recalling war times and the Johnstown disaster, the women being busily engaged receiving and distributing shoes and clothing to the unfortunates, while others were engaged in shortening and lengthening or ' some way altering clothing so it would fit the individual to whom it was intended to be given.

Among the cash contributions received to-day were the following:

Dalzell Bros., Pittsburg, $250; Farrar & Trefts, Buffalo, $200; G. P. France, Whiting, Ind., $10; W. N. M. & P. R. R., $500; Buffalo Express Co., $50; Swift & Co., U. S. Yards, Chicago, $500; D. O'Day, New York, $200; Miller & Sibley, Franklin, Pa., $500; C. M. B. A., Titusville, $100. Total, $2,310.

This amount will not go far toward repairing the loss sustained, which will approximate at least $2,000,000. This includes the buildings destroyed, bridges swept away and the damage done to the various streets throughout the city. Instant action is expected, as the citizens here, while not wishing to pose as objects of charity, are not in a position to assume the enormous loss saddled on them by this great catastrophe.

The operators here have worked hard and faithfully, some of them having never left their chairs since early Sunday morning. In addition to the vast amount of flood and fire matter sent out they handled an unusually large number of commercial messages from far-off friends and relatives as well as the large number of telegrams of inquiry and contribution. Though tired and weary with their long hours and loss of sleep, they continue at their work uncomplainingly, realizing that a terrible disaster has befallen their city and that they must do their part to aid in its restoration.

Starting at Hall's lumber yard, which is at the upper end of the town, the following are the names of the works destroyed, as near as could be obtained:

Edgar Hale, lumber, loss $1,000.

R. D. Fletcher, five or six dwellings, loss $5,000.

Mrs. Antilt, house overturned, loss $800.

Frank Woods, oil refinery, loss $40,000.

L. Beebe & Sons, tannery, loss $30,000.

Mary Ann Keanelly, dwelling, loss $1,000.

Freight station W. N. Y. P., and freight train, loss estimated at $40,000.

Ira Blows, cooperage, $5,000.

McCarthy cooperage, stock swept away, loss $5,000.

J. A. Losee, radiators, Perry station, loss $10,000.

M. Houghtaling, dwelling and shop, $5,000.

George Stephens, shops, building and stock, $25,000.

American Oil Works, $10,000.

Rice, Robinson & Foggan, refinery, $40,000.

J. P. Thomas, International refinery, $75,000.

Standard Oil company, loss not known, as buildings were old and tanks empty. The works destroyed were the Acme No. 4.

It is reported here on reliable authority that John D. Rockefeller, president of the Standard Oil company, has instructed Joseph Zeph, the buyer for the Standard here, to draw on him for $100,000 for the relief of the suffering district.

The body of Fred Luers, a lame watchman, was recovered this afternoon. This makes 56 bodies found. There are 15 bodies lying in McNett's rooms which are burned beyond recognition. The only trace they had to go on was the locality in which they were found. Some were headless, while the limbs of others were severed from their bodies.

The facilities for cairn for a large number of dead are limited, and those burned beyond recognition were placed in sacks and thrown to one side until further attention could be paid to their remains.

Coroner Stronse empanelled his jury this morning and then visited the various undertaking establishments and reviewed the remains. To-morrow will be devoted to going over the ground where these people met their death. Coroner Stronse said that, in his judgment, the verdict could be nothing else than an act of Providence, and from all that can be learned up to the present time no human beings can be held directly or indirectly responsible for the greatest catastrophe which ever befell Titusville.

In a talk with M. W. Truesdale, editor of the World, and who had just arrived from Canadohta Lake, he said:

"People here do not realize what an enormous loss we have sustained. They are only looking now at the number of deaths and financial loss to Titusville proper. I have just come from Canadohta Lake, which is about 17 miles above this city, and I found that every bridge in the county with the exception of three railroad bridges have been swept away. This takes in all the bridges between her and Corry. In addition to this, the roads have been so badly torn up that it will cost an immense sum to repair the damage done. The party with whom I came had to fell trees and construct temporary bridges in order to get back to this city."

Oil City's Anguish.

Oil City, June 7.—A day full of excitement and harrowing scenes has opened. All along the burned sections can be seen groups of persons still hunting for their loved ones. They dig into the accumulated filth and rubbish with bare and bleeding hands.

Many of them have not ceased for a moment in the search for the dead. For many of them the work will be without result, for it is now certain many of the bodies have been either burned to cinders or swept into the flood and away. The banks along the creek are caving in.

At a late hour 67 bodies had been taken from the ruins. The number of bodies recovered gives no fair estimate of the number lost. The section where the loss of life is greatest was largely occupied by foreigners employed in the tube works. No one knows their names, and it will be impossible to ever learn just how many are missing. In this section, also, were a vast number of children. Of all the bodies recovered, only ten were children and the question is, what has become of the rest?

The relief committee has in hand over $12,000, and the answers to inquiries received to-day, will to-morrow swell the subscriptions to double this sum. Already there have been requests for aid from 300.

This by no means represents the total number of sufferers, as many of them have friends here who have provided for them. Among the cities which have either sent subscriptions or made inquiries relative thereto, are Pittsburg, NewYork, Toronto, Buffalo, Philadelphia, Rochester, Jamestwon, Syracuse, Albany, Harrisburg, Altoona, Erie, Cleveland, Columbus, Sandusky, Chicago, Cincinnati, Indianapolis, St. Louis, St. Paul, San Francisco, Denver, Baltimore, Washington.

If you had taken two of Carter's Little Liver Pills before retiring you would not have had that coated tongue or bad taste in the mouth this morning. Keep a vial with you for occasional use.

HOW TO BE HAPPY.

If all the actual physical wants of men and women were regularly and completely supplied, and their powers intelligently directed, their vital, natural and animal functions would be performed easily and perfectly, and less disease, physical pain and mental suffering would result.

To prevent disease, preserve health and prolong life, are the objects to be obtained in successful medical practice. Drs. France & Ottman have made the phenomena if functional and organic diseases the study of their life. Early realizing that disease is discord, and health concord, they use their best of skill in so prescribing for their thousands of patients as to restore concordance of functions, and overcome destructive forces which undermine constitutional vigor. No person whose case has baffled the skill of their family physician should fail to consult Drs. France & Ottman, who have few, if any, superiors as skilled experts in functional and organic diseases.—Journal.

Drs. France & Ottman, formerly of New York, now of The France Medical and Surgical Institute, Columbus, Ohio, by request of many friends and patients, have decided to visit Toledo, Wednesday, June 8. Consultation and examination free and strictly confidential in the private parlor of the Burnett House, from 10 a. m. to 9 p. m., one day only.

FROM WAUSEON.

Wauseon, O., June 7.—(Special.)—A week ago last night Long's grocery and meat market was entered and cigars, tobacco and sundry other articles not of much value carried off.

Burglars entered Kennedy's grocery and gun store carrying away several revolvers and a shotgun.

Court has convened and but two cases called up before the grand jury. The court will be in session but a few days.

FORESTERS IN SESSION.

Eighth Annual Convention in Montreal.

Montreal, Canada, June 7.—Delegates are assembling here from almost every state of the United States as well as from the provinces to participate in the eighth annual convention of the International Catholic Order of Foresters, the proceedings of which opened this afternoon.

The order originated in Chicago several years ago, but has about 280 courts in the United States and Canada, with a membership of about 25,000. It gives a life insurance of $1,000 together with a sick benefit. For some time it had a hard struggle with the old time antipathy of the Catholic church to secret orders. But through the influence of several noted prelate and Jesuit fathers it finally became established and made good headway. The present officers include High Chief Ranger P. J. Cahill, of Chicago, and Vice Chief Ranger John Kelly, of Milwaukee.

The adoption of lighter guns, with a corresponding increase in the thickness of armor, is recommended by some British naval officers. Admiral Scott points out that the placing of over-heavy guns on certain ships has led to serious deficiencies in armor. In a recently published pamphlet he condemns the narrow armor belt as worse than useless, and asks some questions that the advocates of belted ships will find hard to answer. The certain wreck of the upper portion of such ships and probable sinking of the vessel is dwelt on with much candor.

In the Chicago cattle yards the various plants are estimated as worth $11,000,000, with 25,000 employes to whom annual wages of $20,000,000 are paid. In the fiscal year of 1890 the approximate value of the products of all sorts utilized there was $15,000,000.

A heroic woman named Miss K. Marsden recently made a dangerous journey into the province of Yakutsk, in Siberia, in search of a plant which she had heard would cure leprosy. She rode on a Yakutsk horse with a wooden saddle for two months without having an opportunity to bathe or change her clothes. She found the plant she was hunting, but it does not cure the dreadful disease, although it eases the suffering. She has founded a colony for the Yakutsk lepers and six Siberian nuns will help to nurse them.

A LADY ADVISES LADIES

A Few Secrets from Her Own Experience Which Can Be Profitably Adopted by Others.

I know a charming lady who knows more beautiful and attractive women than any other lady in this city. In conversation recently, she said: "I often feel very sorry when I see so many beautiful women so delicate, and suffering so much, and I have often asked myself what the reason is? I think ladies do not exercise the proper care. They do not eat nourishing food, they are careless of their feet, their necks, their chests. In this way they open the door for diseases and those thousands of troubles which so often afflict womankind, but worse than all they allow their life and strength to run down to a low ebb. How many women we see constantly in this condition. They need help, they need something to depend upon, something that will assist them, some friend in need. I know this, largely, from my own experience for I was once in the same condition myself. I thought the matter over carefully, and decided what I would do. I knew I needed a gentle, constant stimulant, something that would assist my vital forces, keep my blood throbbing and act as a tonic. I decided to try Duffy's Pure Malt Whiskey and its effect has been simply wonderful. I do not know what pains, sickness or weakness are and I am satisfied ladies generally could be in the same happy condition by a proper use of the same means."

This lady's remarks are entitled to the greatest consideration, for they are an indication of what hundreds of ladies have found to be a necessity. It should be borne in mind, however, that it is only pure whiskey which should ever be used, and that Duffy's Pure Malt is the only one which receives the endorsement of scientists and the recommendations of physicians. Do not allow any druggist or grocer to induce you to take any other.

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Currents for Produce and Other Articles.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 257,967 bu., and at five other western points 107,696 bu.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were, wheat, 271,481 bu. and flour to an aggregate of 400,000 bu. Export of corn, 68,775 bu.

English markets are dull, but wheat quotations at Liverpool are higher.

There are no new elements of note in the deal. The weather continues to be the predominating influence and reports of rain over the entire wheat belt have strengthened the wheat markets. Although Liverpool quotations are better, the markets over there are reported dull. At Chicago the daily round of who is buying and who is selling has daily but temporary effect. The contract wheat in store there does not yet seem to command buyers for export.

Opening prices for wheat were at about yesterday's closing and declined 3-4 to 7-8, but a sudden change occurred in the tone of markets, partly the rains and partly an alleged adverse report of Ohio crop, and prices got a start in the opposite direction, the advance was a cumulative and general stimulus and behold much more than the loss of the two days was restored in an hour and a half.

Corn has also been on the rampage, and has largely advanced. This turn of affairs looks like the reading of the riot act to all short sellers and enemies of grain. We hope no one will ask us what will happen on the morrow. Of course we know, but do not care to tell.

In foreign markets there is nothing worthy of note at closing.

In New York June wheat closed 1 5-8 and July 1 3-4c higher. June corn 2c and July 1 1-2c and June oats 3-8c up.

In Chicago July wheat closed 3c up, after much higher sales. June corn 1c and July 2c, and July oats 7-8c higher.

In Toledo there has been quite a large business in wheat for cash, July and August, and at times some excitement. Our opening prices were 1-4@1-2c lower, but the weakness was of short duration, and in half an hour the market began to advance, and continued to improve until the close, and the last sales were at the top of the market. On the call cash wheat sold at 93@93 1-8c; July at 89 1-4c, and August at 87 1-8@87c. After the call June wheat sold at 92 7-8c, and closed at 94 1-4c a gain of 1 1-2c. July sold at 89@88 1-2c, and closed at 91 3-4c, a gain of 2 1-2c. August sold at 86 3-4@86 1-2c, and closed at 89 3-4c, a gain of 2 1-2c.

Cash wheat was in fair request at early prices, but at the extreme advance was dull. No. 2 soft at 92 1-2c and closed at 94 1-4c, a gain of 1 1-2c; No. 3 soft at 90c; red and white at 89c, L. S.

The number of farmers who believe that the clover crop is their best nitrogen factory is rapidly increasing. So much has been said of late about the ability of clover and other legumes to collect nitrogen that the theory of using clover sod and potash and phosphoric acid becomes very plausible, indeed.—Rural New Yorker.

JUST WHAT A CORKER IS.

A Pointer About a Much-Used Word Well Taken.

The word "corker" is a much-abused one, for the reason that its real meaning is unknown to the vast majority of those who use the word. It is derived from the French word "corquer," and that comes from the Latin "corcare," which in turn was born of the Greek word "korka," signifying "incomparable one."

Throughout the Homerian epics the goddess whom we call Venus is referred to as Venus the corker, and the epithet as originally applied seemed to imply not only natural and inherent qualities but also shining and distinguished accomplishments personal and intellectual beauty, attractions, charms, gifts and arts.

Our word, perverted by the ribald usage of the profanely heedless, has come to imply a certain disregard of consequences, so that when one speaks of another as a corker the multitude gathers therefrom that he who is designated as a corker must necessarily be a well-meaning but heedless pyrotechnist in speech and action. The word "thoroughbred," corrupted by the brutal familiarity of idle tongues, has come to have a similar meaning.—Chicago News Record.

A GRAND PERFORMANCE

Frank Mayo's Power to Charm His Hearers

Has by no Means Diminished—His Davy Crockett a Poem of the Woods—Cleveland's Minstrels Coming.

During the past season plays have come and gone; some good, some bad, some indifferent; performers have sung and danced themselves into public favor; tragedy and comedy, pathos and humor have mingled in the effort to touch the public fancy, and although there have been many successes it is doubtful if any of them touched their audiences so effectually as did Frank Mayo as Davy Crockett at the People's last evening.

A simple, homely story of backwoods life, a story bringing one in touch with nature, a story full of strength, full of beauty, interpreted by a man whose heart is in the work and whose art is far above the strata of common place things.

Frank Mayo's Davy Crockett will stand forever in the memory as a beautiful dream of the woodland, as a fragrant flower plucked from the depths of the forest glade, loosing none of its fragrance or beauty as the years go on.

The action of the play centers about Davy and Eleanor Vaughn, and Miss Ann Baxter, who played the latter part, did much toward making the performance the success it was. She is as sweet and womanly as Mayo is good and manly. Her work has an earnestness about it that can not fail to win the sympathy of her audiences.

People will go to bad shows and then bewail their folly; now that they have a chance all week to go to a good one, if they don't grasp that chance, they don't deserve anything better than the Noon Alarm, the Salary Train, the Slow Mail, the Limited Freight, the Police Gong, and tank actors all their lives. There will be two matinees this week, Thursday and Saturday.

Minstrels Friday.

W. S. Cleveland's famous minstrels will appear at Wheeler's Friday evening. This is Manager Cleveland's best show. The entire performance is replete with rollicking fun and merriment, produced by a clever company of comedians. Among the principals may be mentioned that droll and funny fellow who does not bore you, Arthur Rigby, with a new invoice of mirth producers; John Queen will introduce his latest compositions and his new terpsichorean divertissement comique, "The Modern Beau Brummells;" John H. Blackford, delineator of old-time darkey characters—"Befoh de wah." Banks Winters, the noted southern tenor; Girard Leon, the noted clown from the Folies Bergeres, Paris, and his troupe of operatic donkeys; Billy Lyons, a new burlesque star; the Four Emperors of Music—Howard, Russell, Blackford and Talbert; and Manager Cleveland's latest European acquisition, Onda, incarnate spirit of the air, as he is called on the play bills, whose mid-air flights are said to be more than marvelous. Special attention has been given to the vocal contingent, which numbers over twenty trained voices. An augmented orchestra of selected solo instrumentalists. The stagings and costumery will be the most pretentious yet attempted by Mr. Cleveland and is promised to be a revelation of stage craft.

Garfield Tea is peculiarly adapted to persons of sedentary habits, as its action is mild, not drastic or constipating, leaving no after ill-effects.

ENGINEERS OF FAST TRAINS.

Their Business Requires Lots of Skill and Iron Nerves.

To drive a locomotive at a very high speed continuously for a considerable distance undoubtedly involves the exercise of great skill and judgment on the part of the engineer. That it necessarily involves a great strain on his nerves or endurance does not follow. On the contrary, very many cases occur in the daily working of railways where men are put in positions trying by reason of the risk to be encountered rather than by any speed required. * * * The recent exceptionally fast service between New York and Buffalo, involving as it does a speed of a mile a minute for the greater part of the distance, has proved no more trying to the engineers who run the train than to those of other regular trains of the same line. The speed is a question of power and weight—the power of the locomotive to do its work easily and the weight of the train. The chief anxiety of the engineer is as to whether his engine is in first-class condition, capable of doing the work called for without crowding. He knows that every man on the line is alert and looking for his train, that every possible precaution is taken to insure him a clear track, that the chance of any obstruction is reduced to a minimum. He drives his engine conscious that he has the best "run" on the road, that he has a position eagerly sought after, with no thought of possible danger, but with a feeling of pride that his engine is capable of such work and that he is identified with a road where such work is possible.—North American Review.

DESCENDANTS OF LEVI.

An European Family Who Call Themselves Cousins of the Holy Virgin.

There is a family in Europe the members of which call themselves "cousins of the Holy Virgin," says the Buffalo Enquirer. The reason for this appelation is found in the fact that they claim to be descended in a direct line from Levi, the son of Jacob. They relate that hidden away somewhere in one of their ancestral castles there is a picture, painted some 200 years ago, representing the deluge. Floating alongside of the ark was a little boat bearing the armorial insignia of this family who were too proud and too exclusive to travel on board a "common carrier" like the ark. According to Biblical history, Levi was not born till some few years subsequent to the deluge, but then probably a little discrepancy like that was not considered much account by the artist who painted the picture.

A feature of Idaho's exhibit at the fair will be a practical illustration of the system and benefits of irrigation. A large section of sage brush soil will be transported to Chicago.
